THE MYSTERY HAS DEEPENED

The Foot Found In a Box at the Third Street School Last Week Has

MYSTERIOUSLY DISAPPEARED

Clerk Hill And Chief of Police Thompson Paid a Visit to the Basement Late This Afternoon, But the Foot Was Gone, Having Been Removed

The finding of a portion of a human limb in the basement of the Third street school building, reported in the News Review Saturday evening, continues a mystery. The remains may be evidence only of a surgical operation, or they may point to a crime; no one can speak positively as yet.

Two reporters, in company with Chief Thompson, paid a visit to the Third street school building this morning in order to make a further investigation of the sensational find.

The box in which the human foot was found has been in existence for many years, having been used at the old Fourth street building for the purpose of storing a revolving globe when the latter was not in use. In recent years it has not been used. About six years ago the box was removed to the Third street building, together with something like a peck of geological specimens. It had been placed on top of a pile of old frames and sashes and there it remained until about a year ago.

John Jones, a plumber residing just below the school house, was engaged at that time to do some gas fitting, and the box attracted his attention on account of its substantial construction. He remarked that it would make an excellent tool box, and attempted to lift it from its position on top of the pile of rubbish. The chest was too heavy to lift and James crawled up to see what it contained.

When the lid was lifted the foot was discovered lying upon the stones in the box, and at that time it was but slightly decomposed. Jones called his father, E. J. Jones, Thomas Taylor and Charles DeEdds, who were assisting in the work, and the find was inspected. Various theories were advanced as to how the thing got in the box and the janitor was informed of the discovery, but paid no attention to the matter at that time.

John Jones was seen this morning and stated that the foot was in a very good state of preservation at the time the discovery was made. Asked if he had seen it recently he stated that he had and that the flesh had almost rotted away. This being the case it is reasonable to suppose the thing had not been in the box long when found by Jones, and had evidently been put there by someone who had access to the basement.

Charles Allison had been the janitor of the building since its erection eight years ago, and when he died some two or three years ago, Jones was engaged to fill the place until a janitor could be secured. Samuel Carey was given the position shortly afterward, but did not stay long. The janitorship then fell to Harvey Davidson, who still occupies the position It is more than probable the foot which is that of a woman, and was taken from the right leg, was put in the box during Mr. Davidson's administration.

Clerk Hill, of the board of education, accompanied by Chief of Police Thompson, went to the scene this afternoon and were surprised to find the foot had been removed from the box. This certainly puts a different phase on the matter, as there seems to be little doubt that the party or parties who put it there have now taken it a...

the electric light wires on West Market street became detached and the circuit was broken, leaving the East End and the part of town below Fourth street in the city proper in utter darkness until about 9:45. Most of the inconvenience caused by the break was experienced in the East End, where the people had to wade through occasional ponds of water and over muddy crossings on their way home from church.

A telephone wire was down, and as no one knew whether or not it was an electric light wire or not, Officer Spence stood guard, preventing anyone from coming in contact with it.

Some of the people today are discussing the prospects of "wireless" electric lights.

MISMANAGEMENT OF DUNGANNON CREAMERY ALLEGED.

Five Stockholders Ask That Its Affairs Be Wound Up—Anton Waly's Will.

Lisbon, March 11.—(Special.)—D H. King and others, representing one-fifth of the capital stock of the Dungannon Co-operative Creamery, have filed suit in court, asking that the affairs of this company be wound up and the company dissolved. It is claimed that mismanagement of the financial affairs of the company since its origin in 1899 has caused an indebtedness of $800 and that now the directors and managers have resolved to levy a pretended assessment upon each share of paid up capital stock of 24 per cent as a part of the stockholders' liability. It is also claimed that the business cannot be profitably conducted and dissolution only will be beneficial.

Judge Hole has made an order that a full account and true statement assets, etc., be filed by April 6. The capital stock is $3,600.

The appraisers in the case of Eli Stouffer against Henry Stouffer et al returned their valuation of several tracts of land in Fairfield township at $7,295. Eli, Henry N. and Jacob Stouffer, Amanda Wissler, Lydia Reihl and Martha Cope agreed to take their share under this appraisement.

The will in the estate of Anton Waly, late of East Liverpool, was admitted to probate this morning and Teresa Waly, on application, was appointed executrix with $2,000 bond. S. T. Herbert, T. V. Milligan, Jr., and J. T. Smith were appointed appraisers. The entire estate is left to the wife, with the exception of a number of $5 legacies to relatives in Germany.

THREE PERSONS FINED.

A Shanty Boat Raid Did Not Pan Out Well And Police Business Was Dull.

Police headquarters was a desolate looking spot this morning. Business had been very slow since Saturday.

Chief Thompson and his men had a carefully arranged plan to pinch a large party which has lately frequented a shanty boat at the foot of Market street. About 12 o'clock Saturday night the advance was made, but the result was something of a disappointment, as but two people were caught, Thomas Boyd and Mary Miller. They were charged with disorderly conduct, and upon pleading guilty were fined $7 60 each, which they paid.

William Ferguson, who resides near Calcutta, was in town Saturday, and as those things usually turn out, overestimated his capacity for booze. When found by Officer Wood on Sixth street in the afternoon he was very drunk and the officer provided him with a bunk in the jail to take a nap. He was fined $6 60 by Mayor Davidson, paid up and was released.

SALEM STIRRED BY THE CHARGES

City Solicitor Metzgar's Public Acts Called In Question By B. S. Ambler.

A PUBLIC HEARING IS ASKED

Metzgar Requested His Accuser to Reduce His Statements to Writing, That the Matter Be Investigated—Trouble Over Railroad Sale.

Salem, March 11.—(Special.)—Certain facts have been brought out in connection with the closing up of the affairs in the Salem railway case which promise to involve some of the most prominent people in that city.

It will be remembered that B. S. Ambler was appointed attorney for and receiver of the road some time ago, and acting in that capacity disposed of the line. While the negotiations which led up to the sale of the property were in progress, L. P. Metzgar, as city solicitor, acted with Ambler in the matter, and here the trouble started.

A few days after the sale Ambler conceived the idea that the solicitor was over zealous in his devotion to the interests of the city, and a split occurred.

Ambler intimated that Metzgar's transactions were questionable, and that he had not acted in good faith with either the city nor the receiver, but strange to say the charges were not substantiated. Ambler claimed to be in a position to know that the solicitor had charged the city an exorbitant price for his services, pending and at the time of the sale. He had made two trips to New York, and his enemies made the statement that he had defrauded the city to the amount of several hundred dollars.

So intense did the feeling become that the matter was taken up by the council, and on Thursday night last the solicitor was summoned to appear before a session of that body for the purpose of answering a few questions and explaining some matters upon which the members were not exactly clear. Nothing was given out concerning the meeting, but it is understood Mr. Metzgar's explanations were most satisfactory.

Another star chamber session was held on Friday night, and arrangements were made to have Ambler present to tell what he knew concerning the solicitor's transactions. The members of the council will not talk, but it is not thought that anything that will compromise the solicitor was developed. Ambler, it is said, would make no specific charges, preferring to indulge in vague statements and unsatisfactory explanations, which left the council as much in the dark as before.

The friends of Metzgar are inclined to believe that there is something behind the agitation which has not yet been developed, as the parties at the head of the movement against him are known to have been bitterly opposed to his election to the position he now occupies.

The members of council were somewhat in doubt as to what course to pursue in the matter, but another meeting was held on Saturday evening. At that time it was decided to leave the whole affair in the hands of a committee who will make a thorough inquiry and report back to the body at the next regular meeting.

The proceedings so far have been suppressed and the general public is left to figure it out as best it can. However, the latest move in the matter was made Saturday, when the following was filed with City Clerk Holmes:

"Gentlemen—It having been called to my attention that certain statements have been made concerning me by one B. S. Ambler, to certain individual members of your honorable body, with reference to the Salem railroad case; and

"Whereas, Certain members of your honorable body have undertaken to investigate said statements; and

"Whereas, On Tuesday evening, March 5, I requested the president of your honorable body to procure said statements form said Ambler in writing before March 7, and said Ambler having refused to make said statements in writing; and

"Whereas, at a conference on Thursday evening, March 7, I again requested six members of your honorable body to compel said Ambler to reduce his statements to writing, and that you then call a public meeting at which the said statements should be publicly investigated, which request has not yet been granted me;

"Now, Therefore, in view of the foregoing facts, and believing that the citizens of Salem have a right to know whether or not their officer has performed his duty and fully protected their interests, and are entitled to know the facts, I now demand your honorable body compel said Ambler to make his statements in writing, and that you then grant me a public hearing of the same within a reasonable time thereafter.

"Respectfully submitted,

"LEWIS P. METZGAR,
"City Solicitor."

NEW ERIE LINE.

PROPOSED EXTENSION THROUGH COLUMBIANA COUNTY.

The Road Would Reach Pittsburg By the Shortest Route Via Lisbon, O.

Pittsburg, March 11.—It is believed now that in a quiet way a scheme has been planned to give the Erie railroad an entrance to Pittsburg, and that James J. Hill and others who have lately assumed a controlling influence in Erie affairs are at the back of the movement. The citizens of Columbiana county have reason to be interested in the project, as the Niles & New Lisbon branch would form a part of the proposed connecting link. Pittsburg connection would give the Erie the shortest route from Pittsburg to Cleveland. A company of local capitalists is said to be engineering the scheme to build a line from this city to the Erie and thence to connections with the Wheeling & Lake Erie and the Wabash and Toledo, St. Louis & Kansas City, and at this end to join a belt line connecting important manufacturing plants. The new road will be built on the easiest grades and will enter the city direct through a tunnel, so as to have what no other railroad here possesses, a central terminal near the heart of the business center of the most busy city in the world.

The two tunnels planned to penetrate the Mt. Washington hill and connect with the West End Belt line were originally planned with this object in view. The promoters of the new belt line propose to give the Baltimore & Ohio and the Pittsburg & Western a direct connection and will give them an opportunity to have a central station convenient to the business center of the city.

ENGINE RAN AWAY.

A Locomotive Dashed Backward Into the Roundhouse, Wrecking Part of the Building And Three Engines.

There was a serious and most exciting wreck at the Wellsville shops early this morning. Night Inspector James Leighton undertook to take out engine 609 to attach to train 301. For some cause the engine became unmanageable as soon as it got on the switch and began to run backward.

All efforts to control its movements were futile and the engine dashed backward at such speed that it ran into the round building, knocking down about 75 feet of the wall on both sides, and causing fully 5,000 feet of the roofing to fall. The roof came crashing down on the engines beneath, causing havoc and wreckage to three of them. A workman named Caruthers had a remarkably close call and was frightened nearly out of his wits.

The damage, as estimated by one of the officials this morning, will reach about $2,000. An extra force of 75 men were set at work cleaning away the debris, so that the damage may be repaired.

NEARING FLOOD STAGE.

THE RIVER NOW 24 FEET AND MORE WATER COMING.

Owners of Shanty Boats And Coal Floats Are Now on the Anxious Seat.

The river front was a busy place this morning. Owners of shanty boats and coal floats were out in force getting ready for the flood which is expected. The marks at the local wharf this morning registered 24 feet and rising. At Davis Island dam the river was 12 feet and raising one foot an hour early this morning.

The only Sunday boat to pass up yesterday was the Ben Hur, the Keystone State and Kanawha being delayed by the fog. They passed up today and the Virginia will be down tonight. The Boaz, Charles Clark, John W. Ailes, Volunteer and Hawk passed down yesterday with large tows and the Ailes passed up this morning flying light.

Ice is coming out of the Allegheny, and the Beaver, which is very high, is also contributing its quota.

EAST END FEARFUL.

Looking for Great Damage In the Event of a Flood.

A number of people who live between the river and Pennsylvania avenue, East End, are very uneasy over the prospects of a flood, which may tear out all the bridges and swamp the cellars, as has been the case so often in the past.. The report has been current that a large amount of tree tops, logs ,etc., have been thrown in the run bed up Lake's hollow and that, of course, as a result, when the high water comes, they will be carried down and will block up the passage under the bridges and throw the water on the streets and elsewhere.

Upon inquiry it was learned that there were no obstructions in the path of the river and that all the timber that has been cut since the last flood was at the head of the run and far enough away so that it was not likely to be carried to the runs unless a heavy cloudburst should occur.

It seems that the report started upon mere supposition and that there is no cause for alarm, although a flood at this season is not at all an unlikely occurrence.

When the lid was lifted the foot was discovered lying upon the stones in the box, and at that time it was but slightly decomposed. Jones called his father, E. J. Jones, Thomas Taylor and Charles DeEdds, who were assisting in the work, and the find was inspected. Various theories were advanced as to how the thing got in the box and the janitor was informed of the discovery, but paid no attention to the matter at that time.

John Jones was seen this morning and stated that the foot was in a very good state of preservation at the time the discovery was made. Asked if he had seen it recently he stated that he had and that the flesh had almost rotted away. This being the case it is reasonable to suppose the thing had not been in the box long when found by Jones, and had evidently been put there by someone who had access to the basement.

Charles Allison had been the janitor of the building since its erection eight years ago, and when he died some two or three years ago, Jones was engaged to fill the place until a janitor could be secured. Samuel Carey was given the position shortly afterward, but did not stay long. The janitorship then fell to Harvey Davidson, who still occupies the position It is more than probable the foot which is that of a woman, and was taken from the right leg, was put in the box during Mr. Davidson's administration.

Clerk Hill, of the board of education, accompanied by Chief of Police Thompson, went to the scene this afternoon and were surprised to find the foot had been removed from the box. This certainly puts a different phase on the matter, as there seems to be little doubt that the party or parties who put it there have now taken it a[illegible]

the electric light wires on West Market street became detached and the circuit was broken, leaving the East End and the part of town below Fourth street in the city proper in utter darkness until about 9:45. Most of the inconvenience caused by the break was experienced in the East End, where the people had to wade through occasional ponds of water and over muddy crossings on their way home from church.

A telephone wire was down, and as no one knew whether or not it was an electric light wire or not, Officer Spence stood guard, preventing anyone from coming in contact with it.

Some of the people today are discussing the prospects of "wireless" electric lights.

MISMANAGEMENT OF DUNGANNON CREAMERY ALLEGED.

Five Stockholders Ask That Its Affairs Be Wound Up—Anton Waly's Will.

Lisbon, March 11.—(Special.)—D H. King and others, representing one-fifth of the capital stock of the Dungannon Co-operative Creamery, have filed suit in court, asking that the affairs of this company be wound up and the company dissolved. It is claimed that mismanagement of the financial affairs of the company since its origin in 1899 has caused an indebtedness of $800 and that now the directors and managers have resolved to levy a pretended assessment upon each share of paid up capital stock of 24 per cent as a part of the stockholders' liability. It is also claimed that the business cannot be profitably conducted and dissolution only will be beneficial.

Judge Hole has made an order that a full account and true statement assets, etc., be filed by April 6. The capital stock is $3,600.

The appraisers in the case of Eli Stouffer against Henry Stouffer et al returned their valuation of several tracts of land in Fairfield township at $7,295. Eli, Henry N. and Jacob Stouffer, Amanda Wissler, Lydia Reihl and Martha Cope agreed to take their share under this appraisement.

The will in the estate of Anton Waly, late of East Liverpool, was admitted to probate this morning and Teresa Waly, on application, was appointed executrix with $2,000 bond. S. T. Herbert, T. V. Milligan, Jr., and J. T. Smith were appointed appraisers. The entire estate is left to the wife, with the exception of a number of $5 legacies to relatives in Germany.

THREE PERSONS FINED.

A Shanty Boat Raid Did Not Pan Out Well And Police Business Was Dull.

Police headquarters was a desolate looking spot this morning. Business had been very slow since Saturday.

Chief Thompson and his men had a carefully arranged plan to pinch a large party which has lately frequented a shanty boat at the foot of Market street. About 12 o'clock Saturday night the advance was made, but the result was something of a disappointment, as but two people were caught, Thomas Boyd and Mary Miller. They were charged with disorderly conduct, and upon pleading guilty were fined $7 60 each, which they paid.

William Ferguson, who resides near Calcutta, was in town Saturday, and as those things usually turn out, overestimated his capacity for booze. When found by Officer Wood on Sixth street in the afternoon he was very drunk and the officer provided him with a bunk in the jail to take a nap. He was fined $6 60 by Mayor Davidson, paid up and was released.

A Woman Orator Coming.

Miss Eva Shontz, national president of the Young People's Christian Temperance union, will lecture in the First United Presbyterian church next Thursday evening. Miss Shontz is one of the foremost women orators of the present day and lectured to a crowded audience in this city last fall. Admission is free and the public is invited.

SALEM STIRRED BY THE CHARGES

City Solicitor Metzgar's Public Acts Called In Question By B. S. Ambler.

Metzgar Requested His Accuser to Reduce His Statements to Writing, That the Matter Be Investigated—Trouble Over Railroad Sale.

Salem, March 11.—(Special.)—Certain facts have been brought out in connection with the closing up of the affairs in the Salem railway case which promise to involve some of the most prominent people in that city.

It will be remembered that B. S. Ambler was appointed attorney for and receiver of the road some time ago, and acting in that capacity disposed of the line. While the negotiations which led up to the sale of the property were in progress, L. P. Metzgar, as city solicitor, acted with Ambler in the matter, and here the trouble started.

A few days after the sale Ambler conceived the idea that the solicitor was over zealous in his devotion to the interests of the city, and a split occurred.

Ambler intimated that Metzgar's transactions were questionable, and that he had not acted in good faith with either the city nor the receiver, but strange to say the charges were not substantiated. Ambler claimed to be in a position to know that the solicitor had charged the city an exorbitant price for his services, pending and at the time of the sale. He had made two trips to New York, and his enemies made the statement that he had defrauded the city to the amount of several hundred dollars.

So intense did the feeling become that the matter was taken up by the council, and on Thursday night last the solicitor was summoned to appear before a session of that body for the purpose of answering a few questions and explaining some matters upon which the members were not exactly clear. Nothing was given out concerning the meeting, but it is understood Mr. Metzgar's explanations were most satisfactory.

Another star chamber session was held on Friday night, and arrangements were made to have Ambler present to tell what he knew concerning the solicitor's transactions. The members of the council will not talk, but it is not thought that anything that will compromise the solicitor was developed. Ambler, it is said, would make no specific charges, preferring to indulge in vague statements and unsatisfactory explanations, which left the council as much in the dark as before.

The friends of Metzgar are inclined to believe that there is something behind the agitation which has not yet been developed, as the parties at the head of the movement against him are known to have been bitterly opposed to his election to the position he now occupies.

The members of council were somewhat in doubt as to what course to pursue in the matter, but another meeting was held on Saturday evening. At that time it was decided to leave the whole affair in the hands of a committee who will make a thorough inquiry and report back to the body at the next regular meeting.

The proceedings so far have been suppressed and the general public is left to figure it out as best it can. However, the latest move in the matter was made Saturday, when the following was filed with City Clerk Holmes:

"Gentlemen—It having been called to my attention that certain statements have been made concerning me by one B. S. Ambler, to certain individual members of your honorable body, with reference to the Salem railroad case; and

"Whereas, Certain members of your honorable body have undertaken to investigate said statements; and

"Whereas, On Tuesday evening, March 5, I requested the president of your honorable body to procure said statements form said Ambler in writing before March 7, and said Ambler having refused to make said statements in writing; and

"Whereas, at a conference on Thursday evening, March 7, I again requested six members of your honorable body to compel said Ambler to reduce his statements to writing, and that you then call a public meeting at which the said statements should be publicly investigated, which request has not yet been granted me;

"Now, Therefore, in view of the foregoing facts, and believing that the citizens of Salem have a right to know whether or not their officer has performed his duty and fully protected their interests, and are entitled to know the facts, I now demand your honorable body compel said Ambler to make his statements in writing, and that you then grant me a public hearing of the same within a reasonable time thereafter.

"Respectfully submitted,

"LEWIS P. METZGAR,
"City Solicitor."

NEW ERIE LINE.

PROPOSED EXTENSION THROUGH COLUMBIANA COUNTY.

The Road Would Reach Pittsburg By the Shortest Route Via Lisbon, O.

Pittsburg, March 11.—It is believed now that in a quiet way a scheme has been planned to give the Erie railroad an entrance to Pittsburg, and that James J. Hill and others who have lately assumed a controlling influence in Erie affairs are at the back of the movement. The citizens of Columbiana county have reason to be interested in the project, as the Niles & New Lisbon branch would form a part of the proposed connecting link. Pittsburg connection would give the Erie the shortest route from Pittsburg to Cleveland. A company of local capitalists is said to be engineering the scheme to build a line from this city to the Erie and thence to connections with the Wheeling & Lake Erie and the Wabash and Toledo, St. Louis & Kansas City, and at this end to join a belt line connecting important manufacturing plants. The new road will be built on the easiest grades and will enter the city direct through a tunnel, so as to have what no other railroad here possesses, a central terminal near the heart of the business center of the most busy city in the world.

The two tunnels planned to penetrate the Mt. Washington hill and connect with the West End Belt line were originally planned with this object in view. The promoters of the new belt line propose to give the Baltimore & Ohio and the Pittsburg & Western a direct connection and will give them an opportunity to have a central station convenient to the business center of the city.

ENGINE RAN AWAY.

A Locomotive Dashed Backward Into the Roundhouse, Wrecking Part of the Building And Three Engines.

There was a serious and most exciting wreck at the Wellsville shops early this morning. Night Inspector James Leighton undertook to take out engine 609 to attach to train 301. For some cause the engine became unmanageable as soon as it got on the switch and began to run backward.

All efforts to control its movements were futile and the engine dashed backward at such speed that it ran into the round building, knocking down about 75 feet of the wall on both sides, and causing fully 5,000 feet of the roofing to fall. The roof came crashing down on the engines beneath, causing havoc and wreckage to three of them. A workman named Caruthers had a remarkably close call and was frightened nearly out of his wits.

The damage, as estimated by one of the officials this morning, will reach about $2,000. An extra force of 75 men were set at work cleaning away the debris, so that the damage may be repaired.

NEARING FLOOD STAGE.

THE RIVER NOW 24 FEET AND MORE WATER COMING.

Owners of Shanty Boats And Coal Floats Are Now on the Anxious Seat.

The river front was a busy place this morning. Owners of shanty boats and coal floats were out in force getting ready for the flood which is expected. The marks at the local wharf this morning registered 24 feet and rising. At Davis Island dam the river was 12 feet and raising one foot an hour early this morning.

The only Sunday boat to pass up yesterday was the Ben Hur, the Keystone State and Kanawha being delayed by the fog. They passed up today and the Virginia will be down tonight. The Boaz, Charles Clark, John W. Ailes, Volunteer and Hawk passed down yesterday with large tows and the Ailes passed up this morning flying light.

Ice is coming out of the Allegheny, and the Beaver, which is very high, is also contributing its quota.

EAST END FEARFUL.

Looking for Great Damage In the Event of a Flood.

A number of people who live between the river and Pennsylvania avenue, East End, are very uneasy over the prospects of a flood, which may tear out all the bridges and swamp the cellars, as has been the case so often in the past.. The report has been current that a large amount of tree tops, logs ,etc., have been thrown in the run bed up Lake's hollow and that, of course, as a result, when the high water comes, they will be carried down and will block up the passage under the bridges and throw the water on the streets and elsewhere.

Upon inquiry it was learned that there were no obstructions in the path of the river and that all the timber that has been cut since the last flood was at the head of the run and far enough away so that it was not likely to be carried to the runs unless a heavy cloudburst should occur.

It seems that the report started upon mere supposition and that there is no cause for alarm, although a flood at this season is not at all an unlikely occurrence.

A MEMORABLE DAY

Sixty-One Persons Joined the M. P. Church Yesterday, the Result of the Revival.

CHURCH FILLED THREE TIMES

Thirty Persons Baptized at the First M. E. Services—Knowledge And Revelation Discussed at the Second Presbyterian Church.

Yesterday was a day that will not soon be forgotten in the Methodist Protestant church. The work began in the Sunday school of between 300 and 400 scholars. Under fine orchestral music and the sweet gospel singing of Prof. Evans, the revival fires were kindled early in the day and blazed up later. At the public service 53 persons were formally received into the church by the pastor, Rev. W. H, Gladden, and the large officiary of the church, followed by the hand of fellowship from the members.

At 2:30 in the afternoon another large congregation nearly filled the main audience room in a testimony and praise service. In the evening the church was filled for the third time. Prof. Evans sang "The Holy City," and he and Mrs. Evans also sang a duet with great sweetness and power. Pastor Gladden preached a powerful sermon, taking as his text Luke 23:33, his subject being "The Three Crosses"—one, the cross of impenitence, rebellion and scoffing; another is the cross of repentance, prayer and faith, and the middle one, the cross of salvation. He dwelt upon those three thoughts throughout his discourse, and at the close Prof. Evans sang "Calvary" with great impressiveness. Eight persons came forward, seven of them men and women, and bowed at the altar. Several conversions took place, and the large congregation lingered to a late hour.

Prof. Evans' sings again tonight and may sing "The Holy City" again. Rev. Alfred G. Fletcher, of Fairmont, W. Va., is announced for tonight and throughout the week. All are cordially invited. New hymn books will be introduced this evening.

KNOWLEDGE AND REVELATION.

Secret Things of Which Man Cannot Fathom the Reason.

The pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, Rev. N. M. Crowe, being away, Rev. Winfield E. Hill occupied the pulpit both morning and evening. His morning text was, "The secret things belong unto the Lord our God; but those things which are revealed belong unto us and to our children forever, that we may do all the words of this law."

These words form a part of the dying counsel of Moses to the nation of Israel. He had long been the distinguished leader by whom they had received the divine oracles. It was he who had led them through the wilderness, and he had brought them to the borders of the promised land. He was now ready to die and to leave the mthis message. He made them two very important declarations: Secret things belong to God; revealed things to man. The message was not more true then than now. There are still secret things which none but God can know, mysteries beyond our finite comprehension. There are truths which we believe, yet fail to understand.

There are some mysteries which are capable of being explained, and still others which we cannot fathom, for example the trinity, which we most surely believe, the three persons in the godhead, the union in the person of Jesus Christ of the divinity with the humanity. Then we look about and behold the sovereignty of the great God, and at the same time recognize the free agency of man. We even see in our own experiences God's providential dealings with us and say, they are too high or too deep and far reaching for our comprehension.

God understands why it is so; man only knows that it is so without understanding why. Then in the matter of God's revelation, our text tells us that it belongs quite as much to the children as to the adult. The youngest child in the Sunday school understands his own natural sinfulness, and the things which are revealed ought to be communicated to them in early life so that they may grow up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord.

CONVERTS BAPTIZED.

Thirty New Members Received Into the M. E. Congregation Yesterday.

All the services at the First M. E. church were well attended yesterday considering the inclement weather.

The morning service was devoted entirely to baptismal ceremonies, and 30 new converts received baptism. The service was most interesting and was in charge of the pastor.

At 2 o'clock the quarterly love feast was held in the lecture room of the church, and a grand meeting was reported by all who attended.

The regular quarterly conference services were conducted by Dr. O. W. Holmes at the Second M. E. church Saturday evening, followed by communion services Sunday morning. At the opening of his sermon Sunday morning Dr. Holmes stated that the condition of the church was very satisfactory, and that this church, in common with the other churches of the Steubenville district, was in much better condition than it was at the corresponding quarter last year.

SIX CONVERSIONS.

Intensely Interesting Services at the Christian Church.

The services at the Christian church yesterday were intensely interesting, being the most successful of the entire series.

The pastor preached morning and evening, and much good was accomplished through his efforts. Six conversins resulted from the day's services. At the eyening meeting the attendance was so large that it was impossible to accommodate the crowd. The singing of Evangelist Butterick made a deep impression, both morning and evening. The meetings will be continued throughout the entire week

Meetings at the U. P.

Rev. A. H. Kaylor, an evangelist of renown, residing in Allegheny, will commence a series of meetings at the First United Presbyterian church next Sabbath. It has not been decided how long the services will be continued.

Sang a Fine Solo.

Miss Bowers, who is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Will L. Taylor, Sixth street, contributed to the success of the services at the First Methodist Episcopal church yesterday by the singing of a beautiful solo.

REPUBLICAN CLUB.

East End Young Men Expect to Have a Big Working Organization.

The young men of the East End have organized a Republican club and propose to take an active part in politics in the future.

About 75 members are now enrolled and at least 25 applications have been received upon which action will be taken tomorrow evening. The intention is to make the organization a permanent one. It is thought no trouble will be experienced in securing a membership of 200.

A FERRY WANTED.

East Enders See No Other Way to Cross a Muddy Spot.

An employe of the Laughlin plant states that the ladies are getting up a petition to council for permission to run a ferry across a small lake in front of the Ormes' Machine shop.

The sidewalk here is paved, but is so much lower than the surrounding ground that whenever a heavy rain occurs the result is a pond of water here about a foot deep which covers the entire sidewalk so that the pottery employes, a large number of whom pass here daily, are compelled to either wade through this or through mud six inches deep on the street. Ormes claims that he wanted to repave it and council would not permit him to do so.

A CON. MAN.

He Visited the East End Saturday Night And Sold a Ring.

A worn out trick was worked on an easy East Ender at the station Saturday night, when a smooth looking individual who got off the train offered to sell for $2 a large initial ring which he said he had found on the train.

The East Ender offered 50 cents for the article and his offer was accepted. It is now claimed that the ring was one of the kind that is drawn with a dime prize package at the restaurants.

EAST END NOTES.

Charley Sours, who has been ill with typhoid fever for several weeks, is again able to be out.

Charles Chambers and family, who have been visiting here during the past few days, left for Pittsburg this morning.

Miss Tillie Hays, who has been confined to the house with the grip during the past week, is now able to be out.

It is announced that Dr. Holtz will deliver his celebrated lecture on "Grit, Grip and Gumption" at the Second M. E. church next Thursday evening.

A Sympathetic Memory.

In a western Massachusetts town lives a young woman who is blessed with both discrimination and tact.

The first of these admirable qualities she has displayed by her two marriages. Her first husband was a minister, a most delightful man. He died, and after a lapse of five or six years she was united to his only brother, who was a successful lawyer in New York.

On her library desk stands a picture of the first partner of her joys and sorrows, and one day a curious caller asked whom the photograph represented.

"That," said the hostess, with evident emotion, "is a picture of my husband's brother, who died eight years ago and who was very dear to us both."—Youth's Companion.

Counterfeit China.

Other things besides money are counterfeited, and purchasers of old china have to be continually on their guard or they will be paying many dollars for what is worth only a few cents.

"The market is full of imitation china," said a lower Fourth avenue dealer in antiques who was asked about the matter. "Persons who rely on marks are sure to be deceived, for marks are easily imitated, and there is not one that has escaped forgery.

"Both French and English manufacturers forge all of the most sought after marks and find sale for their products. In looking for old china I find that every mark of importance has been forged, from Dresden to Worcester and Crown Derby, not excepting old Sevres. Every day would be purchasers come here and visit other New York shops, looking for china, and have no mortal idea at all correct of what they are buying. Yet they will talk after a most learned fashion and will take offense at the very suggestion that they may be deceived.

"If you are going to judge of china by its marks or evidence of its age and use from discoloration cracks and chipping, you are more than likely to be cheated, for all of these things are easy for an expert and dishonest dealer to imitate. If you are not a judge of china, then hire an honest expert to purchase for you."—New York Herald.

An Advertising Scheme.

Several old acquaintances of the late D. H. McAlpin, the tobacco manufacturer, were discussing his business success in an up town club, and one of them told the following story as illustrating the farreaching effect of comparatively insignificant things sometimes.

"It was after Mr. McAlpin was well started in the tobacco business," he said, "that an enterprising rival began to cut into his business by advertising that he placed a dime in every tenth package of tobacco put up in his factory. One day a foreman of the packing room went to Mr. McAlpin and said:

"'I have a suggestion to make that promises to knock out this dime in every tenth package scheme of your rival. Will you hear it?'

"'Yes; go ahead.'

"'Well, then, just put a dime in every package of tobacco put up in our shop and don't advertise it. It will advertise itself quickly enough.'

"Mr. McAlpin saw that the suggestion was good, and he accepted it. It cost him a good deal of money, but its success warranted it. Within a few weeks farmers were buying McAlpin tobacco, knowing that they would find money in each package, and if they had found diamonds it would not have surprised them."—New York Sun.

All on Account of the Boots.

As a sergeant was bawling out his orders in a barracks in Dublin and watching the line of feet as the raw recruits endeavored to obey the word of command he found, to his astonishment, that one pair of feet, more noticeable on account of their extra large size, never turned.

Without taking his eyes off those feet the sergeant bawled out a second order:

"About face!"

He could see that all the feet except those he watched turned in obedience.

Rushing up to the owner, a little fellow, he seized him by the shoulder, shouting:

"Why don't you turn with the rest?"

"I did!" replied the trembling recruit.

"You did, eh? Well, I watched your feet, and they never moved."

"It's the boots they gave me, sir," said the poor fellow. "They're so large that when I turn my feet turns inside of them."—London Answers.

At 2 o'clock the quarterly love feast was held in the lecture room of the church, and a grand meeting was reported by all who attended.

The regular quarterly conference services were conducted by Dr. O. W. Holmes at the Second M. E. church Saturday evening, followed by communion services Sunday morning. At the opening of his sermon Sunday morning Dr. Holmes stated that the condition of the church was very satisfactory, and that this church, in common with the other churches of the Steubenville district, was in much better condition than it was at the corresponding quarter last year.

SIX CONVERSIONS.

Intensely Interesting Services at the Christian Church.

The services at the Christian church yesterday were intensely interesting, being the most successful of the entire series.

The pastor preached morning and evening, and much good was accomplished through his efforts. Six conversins resulted from the day's services. At the eyening meeting the attendance was so large that it was impossible to accommodate the crowd. The singing of Evangelist Butterick made a deep impression, both morning and evening. The meetings will be continued throughout the entire week

Meetings at the U. P.

Rev. A. H. Kaylor, an evangelist of renown, residing in Allegheny, will commence a series of meetings at the First United Presbyterian church next Sabbath. It has not been decided how long the services will be continued.

Sang a Fine Solo.

Miss Bowers, who is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Will L. Taylor, Sixth street, contributed to the success of the services at the First Methodist Episcopal church yesterday by the singing of a beautiful solo.

Must Be Here Friday.

Several church notices were received too late for insertion Saturday. All notices intended to go in the "Church Directory," published each Saturday, must be in this office Friday evening or they cannot be published.

MISS AUGUSTA TRUE.

Miss Augusta True is this season playing Edith Yarney in Julius Cahn's big production of William Gillette's great war play, "Secret Service."

EAST END.

REPUBLICAN CLUB.

East End Young Men Expect to Have a Big Working Organization.

The young men of the East End have organized a Republican club and propose to take an active part in politics in the future.

About 75 members are now enrolled and at least 25 applications have been received upon which action will be taken tomorrow evening. The intention is to make the organization a permanent one. It is thought no trouble will be experienced in securing a membership of 200.

A FERRY WANTED.

East Enders See No Other Way to Cross a Muddy Spot.

An employe of the Laughlin plant states that the ladies are getting up a petition to council for permission to run a ferry across a small lake in front of the Ormes' Machine shop.

The sidewalk here is paved, but is so much lower than the surrounding ground that whenever a heavy rain occurs the result is a pond of water here about a foot deep which covers the entire sidewalk so that the pottery employes, a large number of whom pass here daily, are compelled to either wade through this or through mud six inches deep on the street. Ormes claims that he wanted to repave it and council would not permit him to do so.

A CON. MAN.

He Visited the East End Saturday Night And Sold a Ring.

A worn out trick was worked on an easy East Ender at the station Saturday night, when a smooth looking individual who got off the train offered to sell for $2 a large initial ring which he said he had found on the train.

The East Ender offered 50 cents for the article and his offer was accepted. It is now claimed that the ring was one of the kind that is drawn with a dime prize package at the restaurants.

EAST END NOTES.

Charley Sours, who has been ill with typhoid fever for several weeks, is again able to be out.

Charles Chambers and family, who have been visiting here during the past few days, left for Pittsburg this morning.

Miss Tillie Hays, who has been confined to the house with the grip during the past week, is now able to be out.

It is announced that Dr. Holtz will deliver his celebrated lecture on "Grit, Grip and Gumption" at the Second M. E. church next Thursday evening.

A Sympathetic Memory.

In a western Massachusetts town lives a young woman who is blessed with both discrimination and tact.

The first of these admirable qualities she has displayed by her two marriages. Her first husband was a minister, a most delightful man. He died, and after a lapse of five or six years she was united to his only brother, who was a successful lawyer in New York.

On her library desk stands a picture of the first partner of her joys and sorrows, and one day a curious caller asked whom the photograph represented.

"That," said the hostess, with evident emotion, "is a picture of my husband's brother, who died eight years ago and who was very dear to us both."—Youth's Companion.

A Negro Mistreated.

Duquoin, Ills., March 11.—Ferdinand French, a negro, was strung up by the neck four times and beaten with clubs and fists in an attempt of five masked men to extort from him a confession of crime.

Counterfeit China.

Other things besides money are counterfeited, and purchasers of old china have to be continually on their guard or they will be paying many dollars for what is worth only a few cents.

"The market is full of imitation china," said a lower Fourth avenue dealer in antiques who was asked about the matter. "Persons who rely on marks are sure to be deceived, for marks are easily imitated, and there is not one that has escaped forgery.

"Both French and English manufacturers forge all of the most sought after marks and find sale for their products. In looking for old china I find that every mark of importance has been forged, from Dresden to Worcester and Crown Derby, not excepting old Sevres. Every day would be purchasers come here and visit other New York shops, looking for china, and have no mortal idea at all correct of what they are buying. Yet they will talk after a most learned fashion and will take offense at the very suggestion that they may be deceived.

"If you are going to judge of china by its marks or evidence of its age and use from discoloration cracks and chipping, you are more than likely to be cheated, for all of these things are easy for an expert and dishonest dealer to imitate. If you are not a judge of china, then hire an honest expert to purchase for you."—New York Herald.

An Advertising Scheme.

Several old acquaintances of the late D. H. McAlpin, the tobacco manufacturer, were discussing his business success in an up town club, and one of them told the following story as illustrating the farreaching effect of comparatively insignificant things sometimes.

"It was after Mr. McAlpin was well started in the tobacco business," he said, "that an enterprising rival began to cut into his business by advertising that he placed a dime in every tenth package of tobacco put up in his factory. One day a foreman of the packing room went to Mr. McAlpin and said:

"'I have a suggestion to make that promises to knock out this dime in every tenth package scheme of your rival. Will you hear it?'

"'Yes; go ahead.'

"'Well, then, just put a dime in every package of tobacco put up in our shop and don't advertise it. It will advertise itself quickly enough.'

"Mr. McAlpin saw that the suggestion was good, and he accepted it. It cost him a good deal of money, but its success warranted it. Within a few weeks farmers were buying McAlpin tobacco, knowing that they would find money in each package, and if they had found diamonds it would not have surprised them."—New York Sun.

All on Account of the Boots.

As a sergeant was bawling out his orders in a barracks in Dublin and watching the line of feet as the raw recruits endeavored to obey the word of command he found, to his astonishment, that one pair of feet, more noticeable on account of their extra large size, never turned.

Without taking his eyes off those feet the sergeant bawled out a second order:

"About face!"

He could see that all the feet except those he watched turned in obedience.

Rushing up to the owner, a little fellow, he seized him by the shoulder, shouting:

"Why don't you turn with the rest?"

"I did!" replied the trembling recruit.

"You did, eh? Well, I watched your feet, and they never moved."

"It's the boots they gave me, sir," said the poor fellow. "They're so large that when I turn my feet turns inside of them."—London Answers.

A MILLION A YEAR

This, It Is Alleged, Will Be the Princely Salary of Charles M Schwab.

EXPECTED TO SAVE EVERY CENT

Employers of the Pittsburg Man Believe He Will Save Them His Annual Stipend Five Times Over—A Five-Year Contract.

New York, March 11.—Instead of the modest $800,000 a year reported as his remuneration for presiding over the affairs of the United States Steel corporation, Chales M. Schwab will draw a salary of $1,000,000.

The figures were given authoritatively by one of the members of the steel combination who helped effect the settlement between the rival companies. Hardly less extraordinary than the salary, the largest paid any man in the business world today, is the unanimity of approval with which the officers and directors in the different companies in the steel combination regard it. When the matter was under discussion on Feb. 24 at the Waldorf-Astoria an objecting voice was answered by an officer of the National Tube company, in which J. Pierpont Morgan was largely interested.

"Mr. Schwab will earn every cent of it for the corporation," he said. "The amount sounds large, and is large, but the price paid for anything is but relative, and if you can buy several millions for one million you are getting them cheap. By his special knowledge of the business and his acquaintance with the enterprise Mr. Schwab will save for us at least $5,000,000 a year in the consolidation of the officers and reduction of working expenses."

The opposition was silenced, and it was agreed that the speaker had voiced the general sentiment. Mr. Schwab's contract with the corporation is for five years. The exact terms and limitations of his authority have not been made known.

EMPEROR'S WOUND WAS HEALING.

Exchanged Dispatches With Luitpold, on Latter's Eightieth Birthday.

Berlin, March 11.—Emperor William's wound is healing, the swelling of the eyelids is subsiding, and his majesty's general condition is satisfactory.

To Prince Luitpold, regent of Bavaria, who will complete his eightieth year, March 12, Emperor William has sent the following dispatch:

"It is with the most painful regret that I am compelled to be absent from you upon the day when you complete your eightieth year, but I shall feel near you in spirit, with feelings of deepest gratitude.

"My eldest son must represent me. I bid him tell you with what heartfelt pleasure I picture to myself this day your mighty figure, and how, with the loyal Bavarians, and, indeed, with all Germany, I salute the princely hero in whom the goodness of God preserved to us a distinguished comrade in arms of William the Great, and whom we hope he will long preserve to us in his present wonderful vigor."

Prince Luitpold, in his reply, returned "deep thanks, with deep regrets for the terrible occurrence that causes your majesty's absence."

Johnson Ill In Chicago.

Niles, Mich., March 11.—The mystery surrounding the disappearance of Cashier Charles A. Johnson, of the First National bank, has been cleared up. Mrs. Johnson last night returned from Chicago, where, she says, her husband is ill at the home of his brother-in-law. The officers of the bank are satisfied that her story is true. They say that a search of the bank's books show that not a dollar is missing.

Rev. Ebenezer Bushnell, secretary and treasurer of Western Reserve university, died Saturday at his residence in Cleveland after a long illness. He was 78 years old.

The Rochester Glass company has been organized at Rochester, Pa. The charter members are John H. Parke John J. Hoffman, M. F. Mecklem, C C. Noss and J. P. Leaf.

The independent salt plant, which Cleveland and Akron capitalists have been planning to erect in Akron, may fail, because of the failure to secure water rights from the state.

Marshal Ervin, of Martin's Ferry, has been authorized to offer $100 reward for discovery of the whereabouts of Miss Hannah Tomlinson, who left her home in Martin's Ferry January 14.

The rumor that the Republic Iron and Steel company had decided to oppose the big steel combine and had arranged to erect a mammoth steel rail mill at Youngstown, is denounced as a fake.

After reorganizing, with a capitalization of $250,000, the Hess-Snyder company, of Massillon, elected Frederick Snyder president; J. J. F. Hess vice president, and Frank Snyder, secretary and treasurer.

The Youngtown creditors of the Continental Iron company, now in bankruptcy, are forming a plan to organize a corporation, each taking stock to the amount of their claims, purchasing the Wheatland mill and starting it in operation.

West Toledo Postoffice Robbed.

Toledo, O., March 11.—Six masked men secured tools from a blacksmith shop, and, breaking into the West Toledo postoffice, blew the safe with nitroglycerin and secured $700. The safe was demolished and the building wrecked. They fired several shots at citizens who were aroused by the explosion and drove away in a wagon.

AFTER SOME SOUTHERN INTERESTS.

May Become Part of the Big Steel Combine.

Birmingham, Ala., March 11.—T. L. Clark, of New York, general manager of the American Steel Hoop company, in Birmingham gave out an interview in which he said that the trend was in the direction of obtaining southern interests on the part of the United States Steel corporation, and that the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company and other big southern industries might become a part and parcel of the new combination.

He further stated that the election of D. H. Bacon as chairman of the executive committee of the Tennessee company, indicated that the company was controlled by the Federal Steel company, which was to be taken into the big steel merger. He said that the big steel combination necessarily would have to have a foothold in the south, hence the belief that the Tennessee company would get into the combine. President Baxter when asked on the lines replied bluntly: "I think not."

HARRISON'S CONDITION SERIOUS.

Doctor Reported Some Congestion and Danger of It Spreading.

Indianapolis, March 11.—The condition of former President Benjamin Harrison is serious. Dr. Jameson Sunday stated that the upper part of General Harrison's left lung was inflamed. There is some danger of the congestion extending to the rest of the lung and to the right lung.

Until about 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon General Harrison was resting easily, but at that time he became slightly worse, and Dr. Jameson was called. He said that he was certain nothing was to be apprehended for about the 48 hours to follow, but the condition of the patient rendered all calculations uncertain. Last evening General Harrison was suffering some pain, but was resting comparatively easy.

Escaped From Jail.

Denison, Ia., March 11.—John Stoval, under indictment here for the daring express robbery committed at Manila last month, made his escape from the Crawford county jail at Denison.

THE WEATHER.

Ohio—Rain or snow, followed by clearing, except in extreme northeast portion, today; colder; brisk to high southwesterly winds, becoming northwesterly. Tomorrow probably fair.

Western Pennsylvania—Occasional rain or snow today; colder; brisk to high southwesterly winds, becoming northwesterly. Tomorrow probably fair.

West Virginia—Clearing and colder today; brisk to high southwesterly winds, becoming northwesterly.

NOT SATISFACTORY.

Mitchell Reiterates His Opinion on the Proposal of Anthracite Operators.

Scranton, Pa., March 11.—President John Mitchell, of the United Mine Workers, spent Sunday here on his way to the Hazleton convention. He reiterated the statement made by him through the Associated Press from Indianapolis that the posting of notices by the operators to the effect that the present terms of employment would be continued for another year was not satisfactory.

"In my judgment," said Mr. Mitchell, "the proper way to adjust wages and insure uninterrupted employment is to have annual conferences between the operators and employes, as is done in the soft coal region. There is no good reason why the operators should not confer with the organization. Last fall they claimed the organization did not represent the miners. That excuse cannot be put forward now. Practically speaking, every miner in the region is now enrolled in the organization."

In reply to the charge that strikes are more frequent here since the advent of the union, Mr. Mitchell said that even if that was true it would only be natural, as the men have the feeling of strength that comes from union, yet are under no obligation to refrain from sudden strikes, such as would be the case if they were working under an explicit agreement.

NAVAL OBSERVATORY TROUBLE.

It Involves Old Question as to the Superintendency.

Washington, March 11.—It appears that the trouble at the naval observatory is not altogether of a merely personal nature. It involves the old question whether the observatory should be under the superintendence of a line officer of the navy or of a professional astronomer. The latter view has been held by the astronomical profession at large and also by such secretaries as Secretary Tracy and Secretary Long. This view is grounded not so much upon any impossibility of finding persons qualified in the line of the navy or upon any dissatisfaction with the present incumbent, as upon the fact that the frequent changes of duty to which naval officers are subject at short intervals prevent continuity of administration and also upon the general principal that the appointment of superintendent should be made from persons in or out of the naval service, without restriction to any class, and should secure the most accomplished and competent astronomer that can be found anywhere.

The Youngtown creditors of the Continental Iron company, now in bankruptcy, are forming a plan to organize a corporation, each taking stock to the amount of their claims, purchasing the Wheatland mill and starting it in operation.

West Toledo Postoffice Robbed.

Toledo, O., March 11.—Six masked men secured tools from a blacksmith shop, and, breaking into the West Toledo postoffice, blew the safe with nitroglycerin and secured $700. The safe was demolished and the building wrecked. They fired several shots at citizens who were aroused by the explosion and drove away in a wagon.

AFTER SOME SOUTHERN INTERESTS.

May Become Part of the Big Steel Combine.

Birmingham, Ala., March 11.—T. L. Clark, of New York, general manager of the American Steel Hoop company, in Birmingham gave out an interview in which he said that the trend was in the direction of obtaining southern interests on the part of the United States Steel corporation, and that the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company and other big southern industries might become a part and parcel of the new combination.

He further stated that the election of D. H. Bacon as chairman of the executive committee of the Tennessee company, indicated that the company was controlled by the Federal Steel company, which was to be taken into the big steel merger. He said that the big steel combination necessarily would have to have a foothold in the south, hence the belief that the Tennessee company would get into the combine. President Baxter when asked on the lines replied bluntly: "I think not."

HARRISON'S CONDITION SERIOUS.

Doctor Reported Some Congestion and Danger of It Spreading.

Indianapolis, March 11.—The condition of former President Benjamin Harrison is serious. Dr. Jameson Sunday stated that the upper part of General Harrison's left lung was inflamed. There is some danger of the congestion extending to the rest of the lung and to the right lung.

Until about 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon General Harrison was resting easily, but at that time he became slightly worse, and Dr. Jameson was called. He said that he was certain nothing was to be apprehended for about the 48 hours to follow, but the condition of the patient rendered all calculations uncertain. Last evening General Harrison was suffering some pain, but was resting comparatively easy.

Escaped From Jail.

Denison, Ia., March 11.—John Stoval, under indictment here for the daring express robbery committed at Manila last month, made his escape from the Crawford county jail at Denison.

THE WEATHER.

Ohio—Rain or snow, followed by clearing, except in extreme northeast portion, today; colder; brisk to high southwesterly winds, becoming northwesterly. Tomorrow probably fair.

Western Pennsylvania—Occasional rain or snow today; colder; brisk to high southwesterly winds, becoming northwesterly. Tomorrow probably fair.

West Virginia—Clearing and colder today; brisk to high southwesterly winds, becoming northwesterly.

NOT SATISFACTORY.

Mitchell Reiterates His Opinion on the Proposal of Anthracite Operators.

Scranton, Pa., March 11.—President John Mitchell, of the United Mine Workers, spent Sunday here on his way to the Hazleton convention. He reiterated the statement made by him through the Associated Press from Indianapolis that the posting of notices by the operators to the effect that the present terms of employment would be continued for another year was not satisfactory.

"In my judgment," said Mr. Mitchell, "the proper way to adjust wages and insure uninterrupted employment is to have annual conferences between the operators and employes, as is done in the soft coal region. There is no good reason why the operators should not confer with the organization. Last fall they claimed the organization did not represent the miners. That excuse cannot be put forward now. Practically speaking, every miner in the region is now enrolled in the organization."

In reply to the charge that strikes are more frequent here since the advent of the union, Mr. Mitchell said that even if that was true it would only be natural, as the men have the feeling of strength that comes from union, yet are under no obligation to refrain from sudden strikes, such as would be the case if they were working under an explicit agreement.

NAVAL OBSERVATORY TROUBLE.

It Involves Old Question as to the Superintendency.

Washington, March 11.—It appears that the trouble at the naval observatory is not altogether of a merely personal nature. It involves the old question whether the observatory should be under the superintendence of a line officer of the navy or of a professional astronomer. The latter view has been held by the astronomical profession at large and also by such secretaries as Secretary Tracy and Secretary Long. This view is grounded not so much upon any impossibility of finding persons qualified in the line of the navy or upon any dissatisfaction with the present incumbent, as upon the fact that the frequent changes of duty to which naval officers are subject at short intervals prevent continuity of administration and also upon the general principal that the appointment of superintendent should be made from persons in or out of the naval service, without restriction to any class, and should secure the most accomplished and competent astronomer that can be found anywhere.

A MILLION A YEAR

EXPECTED TO SAVE EVERY CENT

Employers of the Pittsburg Man Believe He Will Save Them His Annual Stipend Five Times Over—A Five-Year Contract.

New York, March 11.—Instead of the modest $800,000 a year reported as his remuneration for presiding over the affairs of the United States Steel corporation, Chales M. Schwab will draw a salary of $1,000,000.

The figures were given authoritatively by one of the members of the steel combination who helped effect the settlement between the rival companies. Hardly less extraordinary than the salary, the largest paid any man in the business world today, is the unanimity of approval with which the officers and directors in the different companies in the steel combination regard it. When the matter was under discussion on Feb. 24 at the Waldorf-Astoria an objecting voice was answered by an officer of the National Tube company, in which J. Pierpont Morgan was largely interested.

"Mr. Schwab will earn every cent of it for the corporation," he said. "The amount sounds large, and is large, but the price paid for anything is but relative, and if you can buy several millions for one million you are getting them cheap. By his special knowledge of the business and his acquaintance with the enterprise Mr. Schwab will save for us at least $5,000,000 a year in the consolidation of the officers and reduction of working expenses."

The opposition was silenced, and it was agreed that the speaker had voiced the general sentiment. Mr. Schwab's contract with the corporation is for five years. The exact terms and limitations of his authority have not been made known.

EMPEROR'S WOUND WAS HEALING.

Exchanged Dispatches With Luitpold, on Latter's Eightieth Birthday.

Berlin, March 11.—Emperor William's wound is healing, the swelling of the eyelids is subsiding, and his majesty's general condition is satisfactory.

To Prince Luitpold, regent of Bavaria, who will complete his eightieth year, March 12, Emperor William has sent the following dispatch:

"It is with the most painful regret that I am compelled to be absent from you upon the day when you complete your eightieth year, but I shall feel near you in spirit, with feelings of deepest gratitude.

"My eldest son must represent me. I bid him tell you with what heartfelt pleasure I picture to myself this day your mighty figure, and how, with the loyal Bavarians, and, indeed, with all Germany, I salute the princely hero in whom the goodness of God preserved to us a distinguished comrade in arms of William the Great, and whom we hope he will long preserve to us in his present wonderful vigor."

Prince Luitpold, in his reply, returned "deep thanks, with deep regrets for the terrible occurrence that causes your majesty's absence."

Johnson Ill in Chicago.

Niles, Mich., March 11.—The mystery surrounding the disappearance of Cashier Charles A. Johnson, of the First National bank, has been cleared up. Mrs. Johnson last night returned from Chicago, where, she says, her husband is ill at the home of his brother-in-law. The officers of the bank are satisfied that her story is true. They say that a search of the bank's books show that not a dollar is missing.

LOCAL PRIDE.

Our neighbors in the city of Pittsburg are paying tributes of honor and respect to the memory of their foremost citizen, who died last week. Senator Magee's life may not have been a model one in everything; but it certainly was in one respect. All Pittsburg admits that he did more than any other man to make that city the great and prosperous community it is. Such a citizen is worthy of every honor.

In his career there is a lesson for the people of every town. He always had full faith in the future of the city which was his birthplace as well as his home, and bent all his tireless energies to the work of advancing its interests. He was generous and public spirited, and what was more to the purpose, gifted with keen foresight. The plans that he laid for the growth and improvement of his city were not made with a view to present needs alone, but for all time. His leading characteristic was local pride. Although, as fortune smiled upon him, the poor boy of thirty years ago came to have millions to invest, he practically put his whole fortune into improvements in his home town. The city prospered, and he was well rewarded. He had indomitable energy and perseverance, and though his private interests were vast, public interests always occupied a larger portion of his time. No project to promote the welfare of his city lacked his encouragement; none could succeed without it.

A city's best possession is citizens of this bent and purpose. If you don't think well of your own town you are not likely to persuade any one else to do so. Find a city where local pride is at a low ebb and inevitably you will find its fortunes in the same condition.

DRINKING AND EATING.

Jacob Riis, who is a diligent student of social problems, makes the assertion that "good cooking and better feeding would do more to abate the evil of liquor drinking than all the anti-drinking and prohibition laws ever passed, and all the raids, legal or illegal, made on saloons." Mr. Riis evidently thinks that Carrie Nation and her followers would do better to attend to housekeeping duties than to spend their time and strength using tongue and hatchet fighting the demon rum. There is good sense in what he says about cooking. Long ago it was asserted that the easiest way to reach a man's heart was through his stomach. It is a truth with a variety of applications. Bad cooking promotes dyspepsia; dyspepsia causes bodily discomfort and bad temper and drives a man to drink and profanity. The cooking school that really teaches the art of cooking is a blessing to mankind. Were every housewife capable of presiding over such a school there would be less work for women crusaders.

But Mr. Riis mentions only one cause of intemperance. Scolding and slovenly wives are another equally prolific one. That man is a social animal is a trite but true saying. Many a man seeks agreeable companionship and enjoyment in a drinking resort because he cannot find them at home. The housewife who realizes that she is unable to make home more attractive to her husband than a saloon ought to be aware that she has shomehow failed in her mission. Instead of trying to reform the whole world at once, she had far better begin at home. She does not need the ballot nor the hatchet to begin the work. Reform in the kitchen and in the house will not, of course, abolish all intemperance. But it will be a stepping stone in that direction. It would cost nothing for any woman to make the experiment. The possibilities are certainly encouraging enough to warrant it.

If you see a man hurrying along the street with an expression indicating that the weight of worlds rests upon his shoulders, don't stop him. The chances are that he is a candidate, and for a few days longer will be as busy as a man with a Waterbury watch.

J. Pierpont Morgan has gone to Europe, after buying up everything in sight in this country. Probably he still has enough money left to purchase a railroad or two, if he happens to discover a rare bargain over there.

The senate has adjourned amid applause which the country will echo. Morgan is silenced temporarily, at any rate.

The backbone of winter apparently has not yet lost all its staying qualities.

IN TRAINING.

The Employes of the Klondike Have Adopted a New Plan.

The boys at the Klondike plant have been at a loss to know how to pass their spare time since Georgia got married, but have finally hit on a plan.

They have formed a boxing club and purchased the necessary accoutrements. They will now spend the noon hour in teaching each other lessons in the "manly art," and as a number of famous local sluggers work at this plant, it is expected that lively and interesting bouts will follow.

One of the boys suggests that whenever the boys lose their temper they can retire to Line island and mark off a ring and finish up in proper pugilistic style. However, it is not expected that any such thing will occur .

AMONG THE POTTERIES.

The kiln hands at the Chetwynd pottery are loafing to day on account of a shortage in ware.

President A. S. Hughes, of the Brotherhood, left at noon today for a business visit to Wheeling.

C. E. Baudisch, R. T. Hooper and others have secured a body of clay near Youngstown, O., and will erect a large plant for the purpose of producing enameled pottery and brick.

Local union No. 42, warehousemen, will hold their next meeting on March 19. The membership of this organization is steadily increasing three applications having been received since last evening.

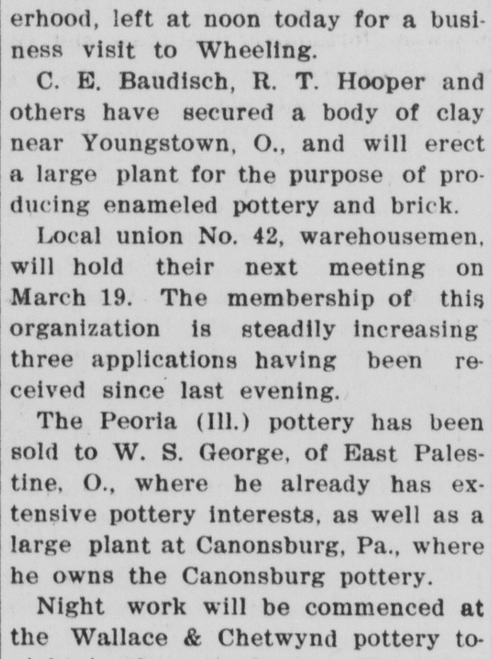

The Peoria (Ill.) pottery has been sold to W. S. George, of East Palestine, O., where he already has extensive pottery interests, as well as a large plant at Canonsburg, Pa., where he owns the Canonsburg pottery.

Night work will be commenced at the Wallace & Chetwynd pottery tonight in the slip house. There has been a shortage of clay at this plant for several weeks, and the slipmakers will continue the night turn until a sufficient supply is made.

Postponed Until Tuesday.

The regular election of officers for the Young Woman's Missionary society of the FirstPresbyterian church was to have been held on Saturday afternoon. Owing to the attendance being small the meeting was postponed until Tuesday evening, at which time the election will be held.

BENDHEIM'S

Peculiarities of Crime.

One of the strangest peculiarities of human nature is its inclination to imitate the misdeeds of others. Crime is epidemical. A particularly dreadful murder, the details of which are set forth in all the newspapers, often has the effect of inducing similar crimes. One of the reasons, and probably the chief reason, why public executions were abolished in England, was that instead of acting as a deterrent the execution had the contrary effect of inciting to murder.

In 1885 a woman of Geneva, named Lombardi, killed her four children. She admitted that she had been reading of a woman who killed her husband, and the very circumstantial account had made her wish to imitate the crime, but as her husband was dead she killed the children. This is only one instance out of hundreds which have come to our notice.

The infectious nature of self murder receives a striking testimony in the following incident: Dr. Oppenheim of Hamburg had to examine the body of a man who had cut his throat and had died after some days of suffering. The medico told his assistant that death would have been immediate if the man had made the cut in a way which he illustrated, and he was startled two days later to learn that his assistant had attempted to commit suicide by lacerating himself in that very manner. The man admitted that he had never thought of suicide until the day of the examination and the doctor's remark.—London Globe.

Some Nice Royal Jobs.

"One of the most desirable posts at Windsor castle," says a correspondent of the Chicago Record, "is that of 'the king's limner,' who in ancient times decorated books and manuscripts with initial letters and who now prepares the parchment commissions when his majesty is pleased to confer knighthood or some other honor upon one of his subjects. The man who now fills the post has extraordinary skill with the pen and brush, and his diplomas and certificates were greatly admired for their exquisite taste and skillful execution. He receives a salary of $2,500 a year. The clockmaker at Windsor castle receives the same compensation, and it is his business to keep all the timepieces in repair. The historiographer, who is supposed to keep a record of events, holds a hereditary office, with a salary of $2,500 a year. The master of music receives $1,500 and arranges concerts for his majesty's diversion. The surveyor of pictures is paid $1,500, the librarian receives $2,500, the examiner of plays $1,600, the keeper of the swans is paid $300, and the bargemaster, who looks after the boats used by the royal family at Windsor, has a similar compensation."

Something Which He Learned.

A soft answer has not only the effect of turning away wrath. It may serve to avenge an injury. Years ago the Rev. J. H. Jones was making a visit in Boston and attended a biweekly conference at Divinity hall. Just at that time he was out of sorts with the east, and his address reflected an acrid mood. Especially did he insist that

"They didn't know everything down in Judee or even in Cambridge."

When he sat down, there was a momentary hush, and then the late Dean Everett slowly rose. He began in his usual soft and hesitating tone, "There are doubtless a great many things which Mr. Jones knows and we do not know, but there are also a few things which we know and he does not."

Then followed a pause, during which each man held his breath, for the dean was known to carry on his lips a dagger which sometimes found its unerring way to the hearts of men and things, but after due pause he continued gently:

"And chief among them is how glad we always are to see him."—Youth's Companion.

The Echo at Work.

When we had climbed to the top of the mountain, we observed an old man sitting on a rock with a pair of field-glasses in his hands. Every now and then he would look earnestly through them and then whoop continuously for a time with a vigor astonishing, considering his age. For a time we observed him from a respectful distance till finally, being naturally curious, I went up to him. "Why," I asked, "do you rubber that way and then yell so loud?"

He turned and eyed me calmly, with a dignity which could have been born of nothing but a great responsibility.

"If you talk to me," he said gravely, "you'll take my attention, and I'll lose my job. I, sir, am the echo at the Mountain House down yonder."

At this point it became necessary for him to howl again, and I retired much impressed.—Princeton Tiger.

To Test Ripper Bill.

Scranton, Pa., March 11.—To test the constitutionality of the Pittsburg "ripper" bill a writ of quo warranto was applied for at the instance of Attorney General Elkin, directed to James Moir, mayor of Scranton, and the first to be appointed a city recorder under the provisions of the "ripper" bill. The person appearing in the case for the attorney general is former State Senator M. E. McDonald, who is represented by Joseph O'Brien and J. H. Burns. This action is taken to test the constitutionality of the bill which effects Pittsburg, Allegheny and this city.

Struck by a Tornado.

Princeton, Ind., March 11.—This city was struck by a tornado. One dwelling was wrecked, several others were moved from the foundations and hundreds of outbuildings were demolished. No lives were lost. The court house and the high school building were much damaged. Hundreds of windows, many of plate glass, were blown in.

UNION LABEL

MONDAY, MARCH 11, 1901.

LOCAL PRIDE.

Our neighbors in the city of Pittsburg are paying tributes of honor and respect to the memory of their foremost citizen, who died last week. Senator Magee's life may not have been a model one in everything; but it certainly was in one respect. All Pittsburg admits that he did more than any other man to make that city the great and prosperous community it is. Such a citizen is worthy of every honor.

In his career there is a lesson for the people of every town. He always had full faith in the future of the city which was his birthplace as well as his home, and bent all his tireless energies to the work of advancing its interests. He was generous and public spirited, and what was more to the purpose, gifted with keen foresight. The plans that he laid for the growth and improvement of his city were not made with a view to present needs alone, but for all time. His leading characteristic was local pride. Although, as fortune smiled upon him, the poor boy of thirty years ago came to have millions to invest, he practically put his whole fortune into improvements in his home town. The city prospered, and he was well rewarded. He had indomitable energy and perseverance, and though his private interests were vast, public interests always occupied a larger portion of his time. No project to promote the welfare of his city lacked his encouragement; none could succeed without it.

A city's best possession is citizens of this bent and purpose. If you don't think well of your own town you are not likely to persuade any one else to do so. Find a city where local pride is at a low ebb and inevitably you will find its fortunes in the same condition.

DRINKING AND EATING.

Jacob Riis, who is a diligent student of social problems, makes the assertion that "good cooking and better feeding would do more to abate the evil of liquor drinking than all the anti-drinking and prohibition laws ever passed, and all the raids, legal or illegal, made on saloons." Mr. Riis evidently thinks that Carrie Nation and her followers would do better to attend to housekeeping duties than to spend their time and strength using tongue and hatchet fighting the demon rum. There is good sense in what he says about cooking. Long ago it was asserted that the easiest way to reach a man's heart was through his stomach. It is a truth with a variety of applications. Bad cooking promotes dyspepsia; dyspepsia causes bodily discomfort and bad temper and drives a man to drink and profanity. The cooking school that really teaches the art of cooking is a blessing to mankind. Were every housewife capable of presiding over such a school there would be less work for women crusaders.

But Mr. Riis mentions only one cause of intemperance. Scolding and slovenly wives are another equally prolific one. That man is a social animal is a trite but true saying. Many a man seeks agreeable companionship and enjoyment in a drinking resort because he cannot find them at home. The housewife who realizes that she is unable to make home more attractive to her husband than a saloon ought to be aware that she has shomehow failed in her mission. Instead of trying to reform the whole world at once, she had far better begin at home. She does not need the ballot nor the hatchet to begin the work. Reform in the kitchen and in the house will not, of course, abolish all intemperance. But it will be a stepping stone in that direction. It would cost nothing for any woman to make the experiment. The possibilities are certainly encouraging enough to warrant it.

If you see a man hurrying along the street with an expression indicating that the weight of worlds rests upon his shoulders, don't stop him. The chances are that he is a candidate, and for a few days longer will be as busy as a man with a Waterbury watch.

J. Pierpont Morgan has gone to Europe, after buying up everything in sight in this country. Probably he still has enough money left to purchase a railroad or two, if he happens to discover a rare bargain over there.

The senate has adjourned amid applause which the country will echo. Morgan is silenced temporarily, at any rate.

The backbone of winter apparently has not yet lost all its staying qualities.

IN TRAINING.

The Employes of the Klondike Have Adopted a New Plan.

The boys at the Klondike plant have been at a loss to know how to pass their spare time since Georgia got married, but have finally hit on a plan.

They have formed a boxing club and purchased the necessary accoutrements. They will now spend the noon hour in teaching each other lessons in the "manly art," and as a number of famous local sluggers work at this plant, it is expected that lively and interesting bouts will follow.

One of the boys suggests that whenever the boys lose their temper they can retire to Line island and mark off a ring and finish up in proper pugilistic style. However, it is not expected that any such thing will occur.

AMONG THE POTTERIES.

The kiln hands at the Chetwynd pottery are loafing to day on account of a shortage in ware.

President A. S. Hughes, of the Brotherhood, left at noon today for a business visit to Wheeling.

C. E. Baudisch, R. T. Hooper and others have secured a body of clay near Youngstown, O., and will erect a large plant for the purpose of producing enameled pottery and brick.

Local union No. 42, warehousemen, will hold their next meeting on March 19. The membership of this organization is steadily increasing three applications having been received since last evening.

The Peoria (Ill.) pottery has been sold to W. S. George, of East Palestine, O., where he already has extensive pottery interests, as well as a large plant at Canonsburg, Pa., where he owns the Canonsburg pottery.

Night work will be commenced at the Wallace & Chetwynd pottery tonight in the slip house. There has been a shortage of clay at this plant for several weeks, and the slipmakers will continue the night turn until a sufficient supply is made.

Postponed Until Tuesday.

The regular election of officers for the Young Woman's Missionary society of the FirstPresbyterian church was to have been held on Saturday afternoon. Owing to the attendance being small the meeting was postponed until Tuesday evening, at which time the election will be held.

BENDHEIM'S

Peculiarities of Crime.

One of the strangest peculiarities of human nature is its inclination to imitate the misdeeds of others. Crime is epidemical. A particularly dreadful murder, the details of which are set forth in all the newspapers, often has the effect of inducing similar crimes. One of the reasons, and probably the chief reason, why public executions were abolished in England, was that instead of acting as a deterrent the execution had the contrary effect of inciting to murder.

In 1885 a woman of Geneva, named Lombardi, killed her four children. She admitted that she had been reading of a woman who killed her husband, and the very circumstantial account had made her wish to imitate the crime, but as her husband was dead she killed the children. This is only one instance out of hundreds which have come to our notice.

The infectious nature of self murder receives a striking testimony in the following incident: Dr. Oppenheim of Hamburg had to examine the body of a man who had cut his throat and had died after some days of suffering. The medico told his assistant that death would have been immediate if the man had made the cut in a way which he illustrated, and he was startled two days later to learn that his assistant had attempted to commit suicide by lacerating himself in that very manner. The man admitted that he had never thought of suicide until the day of the examination and the doctor's remark.—London Globe.

Some Nice Royal Jobs.

"One of the most desirable posts at Windsor castle," says a correspondent of the Chicago Record, "is that of 'the king's limner,' who in ancient times decorated books and manuscripts with initial letters and who now prepares the parchment commissions when his majesty is pleased to confer knighthood or some other honor upon one of his subjects. The man who now fills the post has extraordinary skill with the pen and brush, and his diplomas and certificates were greatly admired for their exquisite taste and skillful execution. He receives a salary of $2,500 a year. The clockmaker at Windsor castle receives the same compensation, and it is his business to keep all the timepieces in repair. The historiographer, who is supposed to keep a record of events, holds a hereditary office, with a salary of $2,500 a year. The master of music receives $1,500 and arranges concerts for his majesty's diversion. The surveyor of pictures is paid $1,500, the librarian receives $2,500, the examiner of plays $1,600, the keeper of the swans is paid $300, and the bargemaster, who looks after the boats used by the royal family at Windsor, has a similar compensation."

Something Which He Learned.

A soft answer has not only the effect of turning away wrath. It may serve to avenge an injury. Years ago the Rev. J. H. Jones was making a visit in Boston and attended a biweekly conference at Divinity hall. Just at that time he was out of sorts with the east, and his address reflected an acrid mood. Especially did he insist that

"They didn't know everything down in Judee or even in Cambridge."

When he sat down, there was a momentary hush, and then the late Dean Everett slowly rose. He began in his usual soft and hesitating tone, "There are doubtless a great many things which Mr. Jones knows and we do not know, but there are also a few things which we know and he does not."

Then followed a pause, during which each man held his breath, for the dean was known to carry on his lips a dagger which sometimes found its unerring way to the hearts of men and things, but after due pause he continued gently:

"And chief among them is how glad we always are to see him."—Youth's Companion.

The Echo at Work.

When we had climbed to the top of the mountain, we observed an old man sitting on a rock with a pair of field-glasses in his hands. Every now and then he would look earnestly through them and then whoop continuously for a time with a vigor astonishing, considering his age. For a time we observed him from a respectful distance till finally, being naturally curious, I went up to him. "Why," I asked, "do you rubber that way and then yell so loud?"

He turned and eyed me calmly, with a dignity which could have been born of nothing but a great responsibility.

"If you talk to me," he said gravely, "you'll take my attention, and I'll lose my job. I, sir, am the echo at the Mountain House down yonder."

The infectious nature of self murder receives a striking testimony in the following incident: Dr. Oppenheim of Hamburg had to examine the body of a man who had cut his throat and had died after some days of suffering. The medico told his assistant that death would have been immediate if the man had made the cut in a way which he illustrated, and he was startled two days later to learn that his assistant had attempted to commit suicide by lacerating himself in that very manner. The man admitted that he had never thought of suicide until the day of the examination and the doctor's remark.—London Globe.

Some Nice Royal Jobs.

"One of the most desirable posts at Windsor castle," says a correspondent of the Chicago Record, "is that of 'the king's limner,' who in ancient times decorated books and manuscripts with initial letters and who now prepares the parchment commissions when his majesty is pleased to confer knighthood or some other honor upon one of his subjects. The man who now fills the post has extraordinary skill with the pen and brush, and his diplomas and certificates were greatly admired for their exquisite taste and skillful execution. He receives a salary of $2,500 a year. The clockmaker at Windsor castle receives the same compensation, and it is his business to keep all the timepieces in repair. The historiographer, who is supposed to keep a record of events, holds a hereditary office, with a salary of $2,500 a year. The master of music receives $1,500 and arranges concerts for his majesty's diversion. The surveyor of pictures is paid $1,500, the librarian receives $2,500, the examiner of plays $1,600, the keeper of the swans is paid $300, and the bargemaster, who looks after the boats used by the royal family at Windsor, has a similar compensation."

Something Which He Learned.

A soft answer has not only the effect of turning away wrath. It may serve to avenge an injury. Years ago the Rev. J. H. Jones was making a visit in Boston and attended a biweekly conference at Divinity hall. Just at that time he was out of sorts with the east, and his address reflected an acrid mood. Especially did he insist that

"They didn't know everything down in Judee or even in Cambridge."

When he sat down, there was a momentary hush, and then the late Dean Everett slowly rose. He began in his usual soft and hesitating tone, "There are doubtless a great many things which Mr. Jones knows and we do not know, but there are also a few things which we know and he does not."

Then followed a pause, during which each man held his breath, for the dean was known to carry on his lips a dagger which sometimes found its unerring way to the hearts of men and things, but after due pause he continued gently:

"And chief among them is how glad we always are to see him."—Youth's Companion.

The Echo at Work.

When we had climbed to the top of the mountain, we observed an old man sitting on a rock with a pair of field-glasses in his hands. Every now and then he would look earnestly through them and then whoop continuously for a time with a vigor astonishing, considering his age. For a time we observed him from a respectful distance till finally, being naturally curious, I went up to him. "Why," I asked, "do you rubber that way and then yell so loud?"

He turned and eyed me calmly, with a dignity which could have been born of nothing but a great responsibility.

"If you talk to me," he said gravely, "you'll take my attention, and I'll lose my job. I, sir, am the echo at the Mountain House down yonder."

At this point it became necessary for him to howl again, and I retired much impressed.—Princeton Tiger.

To Test Ripper Bill.

Scranton, Pa., March 11.—To test the constitutionality of the Pittsburg "ripper" bill a writ of quo warranto was applied for at the instance of Attorney General Elkin, directed to James Moir, mayor of Scranton, and the first to be appointed a city recorder under the provisions of the "ripper" bill. The person appearing in the case for the attorney general is former State Senator M. E. McDonald, who is represented by Joseph O'Brien and J. H. Burns. This action is taken to test the constitutionality of the bill which effects Pittsburg, Allegheny and this city.

Struck by a Tornado.

Princeton, Ind., March 11.—This city was struck by a tornado. One dwelling was wrecked, several others were moved from the foundations and hundreds of outbuildings were demolished. No lives were lost. The court house and the high school building were much damaged. Hundreds of windows, many of plate glass, were blown in.

TAX QUESTION IN A NUTSHELL

Dr. R. J. Marshall Has Some Interesting Observations Upon It.

BOUND TO BE INJUSTICE

He States That the Valuations Were Improperly Made And That Taxpayers Will Bear Unequal Burdens. How the Reduction Would Work.

The tax question, as stated in the News Review of Saturday, has become an exceedingly live one with the people. In the following communication to the News Review, Dr. R. J. Marshall, president of council, makes some interesting observations:

To the Editor of the News Review:

The tax question has come up, and is being talked about in the coming primaries. Permit me to say council cannot help but levy a tax that will be an outrage on many people, it matters not who they elect. It is the same with the board of education and the county commissioners. Let me explain:

For years—eight, at least—council has never changed the levy. It was 12 mills then; it is 12 mills today. All increases have been due to the board of education, county commissioners or increased valuation on some individual property by reason of improvements. And when by reason of improvement, your assessor first, then the board of equalization, fixes the tax valuation, not council. Now, let us see. Council has no control over the county commissioners or the board of education. Therefore the city levy is all it can control. The levy is now 12 mills; valuation (old), $3,410,000, which raised $40,920; new valuation, personal and real, approximate, $5,500,000. Now, to raise the same amount of money, 7½ mills would raise about $41,250. On the surface that would seem like making a big reduction in the millage. And if all valuations were equal, that is, all property valued at its actual worth or an equal per cent of its actual worth—then there would be no injustice to anyone, but if council would be unjust, it would be unjust to all alike. Now to explain where the outrage comes in and why some will be greatly benefited and some greatly wronged.

Here is a business block, worth $35,000, valued at $4,500; 7½ mills on that would make the tax, $25.25. Here is another property, a residence worth $1,500, valued at $1,200. A tax of 7½ mills on that would make the tax $9. One man has $35,000 worth of property and pays $25.25. The other has about one twenty-third as much property and pays over one-third as much tax.

There is no way council can make it right, only by following the advice of Attorney Brooks. And every voter should see that the councilman he votes for should pledge himself to vote for no member of the equalization board, who won't first pledge himself to correct the valuations along the lines laid out by Mr. Brooks.

Yours,

R. J. MARSHALL.

THE SCREEN BILL.

Ordiance Committee in Conference Upon It.

A meeting of the ordinance committee is being held this afternoon in the office of City Clerk Hanley. In addition to the committee there were several of the local saloon men present with their attorneys.

The meeting is being held for the purpose of going over the proposed screen and wine room ordinance, which had its first reading at the last meeting of council. It is not likely that any material changes will be made.

Not Yet Settled.

The trouble between the kilnhands and the Laughlin No. 1 plant has not yet been settled. The warehouse girls have also taken the matter in hand and only about three of the girls and two of the kilnhands are now working.

The question will come up at the next meeting of No. 17, and it is thought some definite action will be taken.

SOCIAL EVENTS.

It is the intention of the News Review to publish a department of social news daily or as often as events will justify. Friends are invited to send in brief accounts of weddings, parties and other happenings of interest, also notes of guests from other cities who are visiting here. Such notices will be gladly published, the only condition being that each item for this department shall bear the name and address of the writer. Annonymous letters will receive no attention in this or any other department of the paper.

OTHO CLUB.

Members of the Popular Organization Entertained.

The Otho club was very pleasantly entertained at the home of Jesse Smith, on Pennsylvania avenue, East End, last Friday evening.

This club, which is composed of young married men, meets every week at the home of one of its members. On Friday evening crolard was the game, and it was played in the progressive style. Six numbered tables were used, and at the tap of the bell every 15 minutes the man having the highest score moved up one table. The prize, which was given to the person holding the sixth table longest, was awarded to James Elliot. The playing continued until 11:30 when the host served a most elaborate luncheon, to which these married men did service with as much zeal and enjoyment as characterized the amusements in the earlier part of the evening.

The next meeting of the club will be held at the home of Elmer Stevenson next Friday evening.

FRIENDS OF PROGRESS IN CHESTER IN LINE FOR IT.

They Assert That It Cannot Be Defeated—Mud of the Past Few Days Has Made Converts.

"Those seeking an argument in fafor of incorporation in Chester," said J. Howard Maxwell, this morning, "need nothing better than the condition of the streets for the past few days. Country roads could not be worse than the streets of the lower end. There is a marked change in the sentiment in the past few days. The friends of incorporation are bound to win. It is progress, and progress is impossible without incorporation. No person who has visited the upper portion of the town and traveled over the paved streets and good sidewalks and then passed on to the lower end, to find himself swamped in mud, can fail to be a convert to the town idea. The streets in the upper end are laid and paid for, and so much improvement is disposed of. Do the citizens of the lower end want no improvements? Are they content to remain forever in the mud?

"Then look at the benefits of improved order and the unmerous advantages that will follow incorporation. Chester is a town with a future, and it is a mistaken idea for any citizen to put up a bar against its advancement. No community ever became great or prospered as it should without a town government. Chester is going to have one, and to go forward and not backward."

All Interest Centers On the Election on the Southside Tomorrow.

The election in Chester tomorrow promises to be a lively contest. Both sides claim they will win.

One can get any sort of an estimate—it all depends on whom he talks to. Both sides are vigilant and say they will do their utmost to preserve order.

Interest is at a white heat, and it seems probable that a full vote will be polled. According to the census there should be about 150 votes.

The Antis' Position.

W. H. Riley said this morning: "My friends and I would like to ask the promoters of the incorporation scheme what the cost will be when completed. We have been in the dark as to that matter. The code of West Virginia warns the people to ascertain what their fees will be, for there is no limit as to this unless bound by the law. We would say to voters, be on your guard tomorrow when you cast your ballots, and remember that is the time to decide whether or not we shall be responsible for this injustice."

Trouble Threatened.

Considerable trouble is threatened as a result of the suits brought against J. E. Mercer for unpaid bills some time ago. Mr. Mercer's attorney claims that he will sue the constable and prosecutors for damages if Mercer's goods are sold. The case is important, for the court where the matter will be settled if suit for damages is brought, will finally decide whether a man's goods can be attached when he seems to be trying to beat his creditors by moving away.

A MAN AND HIS VIOLETS.

The Story of the Vivacious Maid Who Received the Flowers.

"Yes, it was a lovely bunch of violets," sighed the girl who received them, "but I wish they had never come to me. You see, it was this way: The man who sent them is one of those awfully nice fellows who bore you to death—the kind you feel so glad to see talking to some one else, don't you know," she ended appealingly.

"Yes; I've seen the type," sympathetically replied her auditor.

"Well, on my birthday he sent that lovely bunch of violets—perfect beauties they were—with a dear little note to the effect that he had to go out of town, but would be represented by these little purple clad messengers, so like my eyes and whose fragrance always reminded him of me. I thought the note rather nice," she concluded pensively, "and put the flowers in the parlor on the center table, writing back that I had done so. Why in the world was I so prompt?" she wailed.

"It was no more than polite."

"Oh, much more! My dear, it is always idiotic to go into details like that. Well, he did not go out of town, but was 'fortunately' detained and came around after all to tell me so. And those wretched violets"—

"Surely they were all right?"

FIERCE WIND STORM

Resulted In Great Damage at Chicago and Other Western Points.

WIRE SERVICE WAS CRIPPLED

The Windy City Alone Suffered Property Damage to the Extent of $175,000—The Worst Gale on the Lakes for Many Years.

Chicago, March 11.—A wind storm struck Chicago and damaged property throughout the city to the extent of about $175,000. Many heavy plate glass windows were blown in. Telegraph and telephone companies were the worst sufferers, and it will be some time before order can be restored. Thousands of poles were blown down and Chicago was practically isolated from the west and northwest by telephone and telegraph last night and about all day Sunday.

The long-distance telephone service was crippled so badly that it was of little value. Up to a late hour last night neither Milwaukee nor Minneapolis could be reached by long-distance telephone.

The storm is believed to have been most severe in Southern Wisconsin. Along a short stretch of the Milwaukee road, in Southern Wisconsin, 500 telegraph poles are down.

Reports from many points in Indiana and Kentucky also indicate heavy damage from the storm. The Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies suffered severely by fallen poles. It was estimated that there were not fewer than 5,000 poles in the city thrown down by the fury of the wind and storm. Service almost as far west as Omaha was stopped until late last evening.

Trains entering Chicago were delayed all the way from 10 minutes to one hour. The Burlington and the Milwaukee and St. Paul companies were the worst sufferers in this respect. All the roads suffered damages to their tracks and switch yards.

At the life saving station at the mouth of the Chicago river it was considered the worst gale which has struck Chicago harbor since 1894. The water, lashed into fury, came up to the life saving station and flooded the floor for the first time in 12 years. Most of the shipping was protected in winter quarters, so that the damage done to it was slight.

Presidents Low and James and Secretary Beebe told How Raymond, under the name of Prof. Sandys, had played a confidence game on them by which he obtained $200 from the bank. President Gilman testified that the letter which Raymond presented to President Low was a forgery. The technical charges on which Raymond was held was the forging of the check and the Gilman letter, and he was held in $3,000 bond on each of these charges. FIERCE WIND STORM

Resulted In Great Damage at Chicago and Other Western Points.

The Windy City Alone Suffered Property Damage to the Extent of $175,000—The Worst Gale on the Lakes for Many Years.

Chicago, March 11.—A wind storm struck Chicago and damaged property throughout the city to the extent of about $175,000. Many heavy plate glass windows were blown in. Telegraph and telephone companies were the worst sufferers, and it will be some time before order can be restored. Thousands of poles were blown down and Chicago was practically isolated from the west and northwest by telephone and telegraph last night and about all day Sunday.

The long-distance telephone service was crippled so badly that it was of little value. Up to a late hour last night neither Milwaukee nor Minneapolis could be reached by long-distance telephone.

The storm is believed to have been most severe in Southern Wisconsin. Along a short stretch of the Milwaukee road, in Southern Wisconsin, 500 telegraph poles are down.

Reports from many points in Indiana and Kentucky also indicate heavy damage from the storm. The Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies suffered severely by fallen poles. It was estimated that there were not fewer than 5,000 poles in the city thrown down by the fury of the wind and storm. Service almost as far west as Omaha was stopped until late last evening.

Trains entering Chicago were delayed all the way from 10 minutes to one hour. The Burlington and the Milwaukee and St. Paul companies were the worst sufferers in this respect. All the roads suffered damages to their tracks and switch yards.

At the life saving station at the mouth of the Chicago river it was considered the worst gale which has struck Chicago harbor since 1894. The water, lashed into fury, came up to the life saving station and flooded the floor for the first time in 12 years. Most of the shipping was protected in winter quarters, so that the damage done to it was slight.

Ordained as Ministers.

York, Pa., March 11.—At Red Lion Bishop W. M. Stanford, D. D., ordained to their respective ministerial offices Revs. M. T. Crouch and W. H. Brown, to whom the Central Pennsylvania conference of the United Evangelical church had voted elders' orders, and John I. Craul, John F. Pettit, Guy R. Stover, N. F. Weaver and M. A. Faus, whom conference had promoted to the office of deacons. Rev. J. D. Woodring delivered the principal address at the celebration of the anniversary of the conference missionary society.

Pennsylvania Revenues.

Harrisburg, March 11.—The net amount of the state revenues for the fiscal year ended Nov. 30, 1900, as shown by the last annual report of State Treasurer James E. Barnett, was $14,280,820.05, an increase of $2,059,352.76 in the gross receipts for 1899. Colonel Barnett estimates the state revenue for the current fiscal year at $13,519,875 and the payments at $12,684,871.50, which is exclusive of any sum which may be appropriated to complete the capitol.

Washington, March 11.—The senate committee on military affairs completed its arrangements for the investigation of the charges against Lieutenant Colonel Heistand by naming the sub-committee to conduct the inquiry. Washington, March 11.—James McCallum, son-in-law of the late John Sherman, has been regularly appointed by the secretary of state to edit the laws of congress, having heretofore done the same work under contract.

Bank In Kansas Robbed.

Argonia, Kan., March 11.—The private bank of J. H. Springer was burglarized here by three men, and about $2,600 in cash and about $4,000 in registered government 3 per cent bonds secured.

NO DRINKING.

A Western Railroad Will Not Allow Its Employes to Indulge at Any Time.

Dubuque, Ia., March 11.—The superintendent of the Dubuque division of the Chicago Great Western Railroad company issued a sweeping order to employes, which in effect prohibits them from using intoxicating liquor in any form or at any time. It applies to trainmen, station agents, foremen and others who hold responsible positions with the company. It prohibits them from entering saloons or using liquor, whether on or off duty, and the penalty for any violation of this rule is immediate discharge of the offender. The order also commands all employes to pay their honest debts, and any failure to do so will cause their immediate discharge, unless a reasonable excuse can be given.

SWINDLED PROMINENT MEN.

Seth Low and Others Appeared Against Raymond.

New York, March 11.—President Seth Low, of Columbia university; General Thomas L. Ford, president of the Lincoln National bank; President Daniel C. Gilman, of Johns Hopkins university, of Baltimore, and Secretary William Beebe, of Columbia university, were in police court, before Magistrate Pool, to prosecute Ross Raymand for swindling. Presidents Low and James and Secretary Beebe told How Raymond, under the name of Prof. Sandys, had played a confidence game on them by which he obtained $200 from the bank President Gilman testified that the letter which Raymond presented to President Low was a forgery. The technical charges on which Raymond was held was the forging of the check and the Gilman letter, and he was held in $3,000 bond on each of these charges. Raymond was arrested in New Haven last week for trying to swindle President Hadley, of Yale college.

Diaz Reported Gaining Strength.

Mexico City, March 11.—The Official Gazette, published by the government, announces that President Diaz will return here within a fortnight, in order to preside over the cabinet session, which will discuss the coming message to congress, which opens next month. Reports agreed that the president is steadily gaining in strength.

Two Murdered by a Doctor.

Hindman, Ky., March 11.—Rufus Wooten and John Everage were killed by Benton Messeus, a Knott county physician, during a fight here. About two days previous the two men, with Blaine Combs, fired into Messeus' house as they rode by. Returning Saturday, a general fight took place, with the above result.

Cashier of Bank Was Missing.

Niles, Mich., March 11.—Cashier Charles A. Johnson, of the First National bank, which closed its doors Friday, was still missing Sunday Johnson's friends insisted that he was deranged mentally as a result of the shock of the bank's suspension and was in Chicago. However, they did not give his address in that city.

Wichita, Kan., March 11.—A sealed verdict was returned in the case of the state vs Mrs. Carrie Nation, Lucy Wilhoite, Julia Evans and Lydia Muntz, charged with wrecking a saloon here on Jan. 21. The verdict was to be read, it was expected, in the district court today.

CUBAN IRE AROUSED

Radical Element Among the Islanders Doing Much Agitating Just at Present.

FIGHTING PLATT.S AMENDMENT

Placards Vigorously Worded Placed in Public Places—Action of the United States Attributed by the Radical Press to Trusts.

Havana, March 11.—Although the political demonstrations have ended, the radical element in the Cuban constitutional convention has not given up hope that the United States will recede from the position taken regarding the Platt amendment. The radical press is doing everything in its power to keep this view before the public. It attributes the action of the United States congress to the influence of the trusts, declaring that the American people "are in favor of giving Cuba an absolute independence and of rebuking the action of the administration." Articles from American powers which seem to sustain the attitude of the convention are given wide publicity.

Senor Gualberto Gomez says in La Patria:

"Let us, the champions of our country's independence and sovereignty, preserve the calm, dignified attitude we have assumed. Do not let us lose our calm judgment. Let us maintain our energetic resolution to be free, but let us avoid furnishing the slightest pretext for the unhealthy imperialism which is corrupting the blood of a generous people and inclining them to trample upon our rights.

"Let us still believe in the justice of our cause and in the honor of our country, which produced Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln."

At street corners in various public places placards have been posted, which read thus:

"To the people of the United States—Do not make any promises that you are not sure to keep and never go back on the word you have given.

(Signed) "George Washington."

This is recommended to the consideration of "all worthy compatriots of the great American."

Thus far the radical members of the convention remain firm in their determination not to accept the Platt amendment. The committee on foreign relations, it was expected, will meet today, but a final report was not expected Sunday for several days.

Warrant Sworn Out For a Girl.

St. Joseph, Mo., March 11.—The grand jury, which had been investigating the murder case of Millionaire Frank Richardson, after examining the fortieth witness, adjourned Saturday, expecting to re-convene today. Some very sensational evidence is said to have been given the body and a warrant was sworn out for the arrest of Bessie Phillips, the domestic in the employ of the Richardson home, on the night of the murder. The grand jury will continue to work on the case.

James P. Wilson Appointed.

Youngstown, O., March 11.—James P. Wilson, counsel for the Pittsburg and Lake Erie railroad, has been appointed general counsel for the Richland and Mahoning railroad, which is securing right of way through this city. This appointment is regarded as confirmation of the report that the Vanderbilts, who own the Pittsburg and Lake Erie, are the promoters of the Richland and Mahoning, as it will give them a direct outlet from Pittsburg to the southwest.

A Victory For Anti-Liquor Element.

Topeka, Kan., March 11.—After a fight of unprecedented bitterness between the temperance and anti-temperance elements here, Colonel J. W. E. Hughes and the entire "law enforcement" ticket was nominated in the Republican primaries by a majority of more than a thousand. More women voted than ever before in an election here.

Edited by Mrs. Nation.

Topeka, Kan., March 11.—The first issue of Mrs. Nation's Smasher Mail appeared and was used as campaign literature by those opposed to the nomination in the primaries of the "Law and Order" candidate for mayor. Mrs. Nation is yet in the county jail, and edited The Smasher from there.

Miles to Go to Cuba.

Washington, March 11.—Lieutenant General Miles, accompanied by his staff, it was expected, will leave here next Thursday for a trip to Cuba, where he will make an inspection of the principal military posts.

KILLED IN A TORNADO.

Eight Persons Met Death And Others Were Hurt in the Texas Storm.

Dallas, Texas, March 10.—Further reports of the tornado at Wills Point made no additions to the death list. As stated in previous dispatches, four persons were killed outright. The property loss at Wills Point is $50,000. East of Wills Point the country is dotted with evidences of the storm's fury and by the little mounds of wreckage its course can be followed to the Arkansas line. At New Boston and at Texarkana it seems to have left the state. At both these places houses were considerably damaged. At New Boston two negroes were injured by flying debris. The recovery of one of them is doubtful. A number of small houses there were wrecked. At Texarkana some damage was done on College hill, a suburb. The westernmost trace of the storm is in Collin county, about 30 miles north of Dallas. Here the wind was very strong, but no serious damage is reported.

The dead at Wills Point are:

Maggie Clouse, infant of Rev. J. H. Clouse.

Leon, 3-year-old son of J. H. Williams.

Child of John White.

Charles Powers, painter, drowned.

St. Louis, March 10.—A special to The Globe Democrat from Dallas, Texas, last night, said in part:

Up to tonight, eight deaths are reported from the Will's Point tornado.

Beulah Johnson died last night from fright. She was sick at the home of her father, O. L. Johnson, when the storm struck the town. S. W. Garrett, Benjamin Walters and two of J. W. Williams' children are reported to be dying.

Six Killed In Arkansas.

Forest City, Ark., March 11.—Three persons were killed and many injured in this vicinity by a tornado.

Paragould, Ark., March 11.—The storm killed three persons in this (Greene) county and wrought much property damage.

LI HUNG CHANG ILL.

He and Ching Apparently Trying to Fool the Powers.

Pekin, March 11.—Li Hung Chang is again seriously ill, and his physician said his life hung by a thread.

Prince Ching and Earl Li seem to think that by spreading rumors of the court's unwillingness to return to Pekin, unless this or that thing is done, they can influence the deliberations of the ministers of the powers. As a matter of fact, according to reliable reports from Sian Fu, the imperial personages are extremely uncomfortable at Sian Fu, where they live in the house of the governor, which is only a small structure.

French missionaries who have just returned here from Sian Fu believe the empress dowager would bring the court back to Pekin on the first offer of the allies having as a basis the removal of the troops except the legation guards.

FEARFUL RAVAGES OF PLAGUE.

22 Deaths and 102 Cases Reported at Cape Town.

Cape Town, March 11.—The official reports regarding the progress of the bubonic plague in Cape Town since the outbreak showed a total of 22 deaths and 102 cases.

The Malays gathered to oppose the removal of a Malay who had been attacked by the disease and of several persons who had come in contact with the victim. The police were overpowered and the persons who had come into contact with the Malay made their escape. In the event of a repetition of this experience it will be necessary to employ an armed force, so that trouble is anticipated.

BUILDING DAMAGED BY FIRE.

A Railrord Structure Suffered to Extent of About $250,000.

New York, March 11.—The building owned and occupied by the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company, for the general offices of several departments, at Willis avenue and One Hundred and Thirty-second street, was heavily damaged by fire. It is estimated that the damage to the building and the valuable records stored there will probably aggregate $250,000. Thirty clerks employed in the building at the time of the fire escaped with difficulty.

The building was 300 by 40 feet in dimensions and three stories high.

Strengthened the Prohibitory Law.

Topeka, Kan., March 11.—The Kansas legislature adjourned. The principal law passed was one known as the Hurrell bill, which strengthened the prohibitory law of the state.

Offered a Library by Carnegie.

San Jose, Cal., March 11.—Andrew Carnegie offered to give $50,000 for a library for San Jose, the city to appropriate not less than $5,000 a year for maintenance and furnish the site.

THE DRUMHEAD BUSINESS.

A Huge Long Island Industry Which Prospers by War.

Few people know that more than half the banjo and drum heads sold in the United States are made on Long Island. Near the railroad station at Cold Spring is a little red building surrounded by frames, in which skins are stretched for drying, while near by is an artificial pond, with wooden sides and bottom, filled with a chemical mixture. It is an unpretentious establishment, but in our two wars and in the peace between it has fathered a great deal of noise. The business was established in 1860, and success was almost immediate. Competition was strong after the rush of war orders was over, but the business has advanced in importance until now there are but three factories in this country whose opposition can be felt. Two of these are in Brooklyn and the other at High View, N. Y.

New York markets furnish the salted raw skins from which the drumheads are made. The hair is removed from the skins by a chemical bath in the artificial pond, and the skins are then stretched on the racks and dried. A thorough scraping removes any particles of fat or flesh that may have adhered to the dried skin, which is then the thickness of parchment. The skins are thoroughly bleached in the drying process and are then ready for cutting into heads. During the Spanish-American war the factory was fairly swamped with orders for drumheads, 500 dozen heads often being ordered at one time. The principal demand was for the "tenor" drum, on which a loud accompaniment to the fife or bass instrument can be produced.

Kangaroo skins make the costliest drumheads. When dressed, they are showy, but beyond their appearance and name they are of no greater value than heads made from calfskin. Sheepskin is used for cheap toy drums.—New York Post.

QUAINT COLONIAL NAMES.

How the Offspring of Our First Colonists Were Christened.

It is an interesting study to trace the underlying reason for many of the curious names which are given to the offspring of the first colonists. Parents searched for names of deep significance—for names appropriate to conditions, for those of profound influence presumably on the child's life.

The Rev. Richard Buck, one of the early parsons in Virginia, in days of deep depression, named his first child Mara. This text indicates the reason for his choice: "Call me Mara, for the Almighty has dealt very bitterly with me. I went out full, and the Lord has brought me home empty." His second child was christened Gershom—for Moses' wife "bare him a son and called his name Gershom, for he said I have been in a strange land."

Many names have a pathos and sadness which can be felt down through the centuries. Dame Dinely, widow of a doctor, or barber surgeon, who had died in the snow while striving to visit a distant patient, named her poor babe Fathergone.

The children of Roger Clapp were named Experience, Waitstill, Preserved, Hopestill, Wait, Thanks, Decide, Unite and Supply. Madam Austin, an early settler of old Narragansett, had 15 children. Their names were Parvis, Picus, Piersus, Prisemus, Polybius, Lois, Lettice, Avis, Anstice, Eunice, Mary, John, Elizabeth, Ruth, Freelove. All lived to be threescore and ten, one to be 102 years old. Edward Bendall's children were named Truegrace, Reform, Hoped For, More Mercy and Restore. Richard Gridley's offspring were Return, Believe and Tremble.—"Child Life In Colonial Days."

French Bakers.

Bakers in France are subject to restrictions and regulations undreamed of in England. In the fortified towns along the frontier they are bound by law to have a certain stock of flour always on hand in case of emergencies. The bakery not only has to be kept clean, but the baker has to deposit with the local authorities a certain sum of money as a surety for the proper conduct of his business.

The law also looks after his weights and measures, which circumstance places him in the same position as the British baker, but in addition the law regulates the price at which bread can be sold.

Napoleon III ordered on one occasion that a loaf about equal to our quartern should be sold for not more than sixpence, and this at a time when we were paying eightpence and ninepence. —London Tit-Bits.

Of His Abundance.

"Your neighbor has just given me an old coat," said the tramp. "Can you give something?"

"Yes," replied the clergyman. "I will go through the collection box and find some buttons to match the coat."—Philadelphia Record.

From Manila to Australia is "like going down a river, for one is out of sight of land only two days." The voyage lasts 21 days, but the course is through the south sea islands, which accounts for its resemblance to river navigation.

AN IMPORTANT SURVEY.

To Be Made By the Government Along the Ohio River.

As soon as the weather will permit, which will be very shortly, the United States government will undertake a work that will prove of very great value to this section.

It will comprise a geographical, topographical and geological survey of contiguous territory, on both sides of the river, and the results will be embodied in two maps, which will embrace in extent a quarter of a square degree, with Wheeling as the center, and will thus extend both into Pennsylvania and Ohio. Roughly stated, the territory covered will extend along the river, from a point about five miles south of Moundsville to some miles north of Steubenville, and from a few miles east of the Pennsylvania line to a point about five miles west of St. Clairsville.

The geography of this territory will be adequately and accurately set down, and in addition there will be topographical features illustrated by contour lines, showing the elevations, and also the geological formation. This will result in an accumulation of data in compact form never before approached in this vicinity, and will be of the utmost value to many people.

A Sentimental Farmer.

"These sheep pictures of Mauve's are beautiful," said Mr. L., the art instructor of the summer art school, to his class as he turned over a lot of reproductions from the great artist's paintings. "They are so gentle, so tender, so suggestive of pastoral peace and quietude!"

"Oh, I do love sheep!" exclaimed one of the girls. "They are so dear! Don't you think so, Mr. L.?"

Mr. L. looked thoughtful for a moment; then he said:

"My father, who was a farmer, kept sheep for 20 years. He was an old man when he decided to give up the practice—an old man, but as full of sentiment and feeling as he had ever been. I shall never forget the day when the purchaser of the flock came to take them away. My father stood in the barnyard and watched till the last sheep had passed through the great gate into the road, waited till the last faint bleating of the flock had died away in the distance; then he turned to me with a face full of emotion." There were tears in the eyes of the "class," and their girlish hearts were touched by the pathetic word picture. Somebody said "Ah!" in a long drawn fashion. "He turned to me, my poor old father," the artist continued, "and said in a low, earnest voice, 'William, I'd go five miles any day to kick a sheep!'"—Leslie's Weekly.

His Goal the Letter "V."

When the late Horace Maynard, LL. D., entered Amherst college, he exposed himself to ridicule and jibing questions of his fellow students by placing over the door of his room a large square of white cardboard on which was inscribed in bold outlines the single letter V. Disregarding comment and question, the young man applied himself to his work, ever keeping in mind the height to which he wished to climb, the first step toward which was signified by the mysterious V.

Four years later, after receiving the compliments of professors and students on the way he had acquitted himself as valedictorian of his class, young Maynard called the attention of his fellow graduates to the letter over his door. Then a light broke in upon them, and they cried out:

"Is it possible that you had the valedictory in mind when you put that V over your door?"

"Assuredly I had," was the emphatic reply.

On he climbed, from height to height, becoming successively professor of mathematics in the University of Tennessee, lawyer, member of congress, attorney general of Tennessee, United States minister to Constantinople and finally postmaster general.—Success.

CUBAN IRE AROUSED

Radical Element Among the Islanders Doing Much Agitating Just at Present.

FIGHTING PLATT.S AMENDMENT

Placards Vigorously Worded Placed in Public Places—Action of the United States Attributed by the Radical Press to Trusts.

Havana, March 11.—Although the political demonstrations have ended, the radical element in the Cuban constitutional convention has not given up hope that the United States will recede from the position taken regarding the Platt amendment. The radical press is doing everything in its power to keep this view before the public. It attributes the action of the United States congress to the influence of the trusts, declaring that the American people "are in favor of giving Cuba an absolute independence and of rebuking the action of the administration." Articles from American powers which seem to sustain the attitude of the convention are given wide publicity.

Senor Gualberto Gomez says in La Patria:

"Let us, the champions of our country's independence and sovereignty, preserve the calm, dignified attitude we have assumed. Do not let us lose our calm judgment. "Let us still believe in the justice of our cause and in the honor of our country, which produced Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln."

At street corners in various public places placards have been posted, which read thus:

"To the people of the United States—Do not make any promises that you are not sure to keep and never go back on the word you have given.

(Signed) "George Washington."

This is recommended to the consideration of "all worthy compatriots of the great American."

Thus far the radical members of the convention remain firm in their determination not to accept the Platt amendment. The committee on foreign relations, it was expected, will meet today, but a final report was not expected Sunday for several days.

LI HUNG CHANG ILL.

He and Ching Apparently Trying to Fool the Powers.

Pekin, March 11.—Li Hung Chang is again seriously ill, and his physician said his life hung by a thread.

Prince Ching and Earl Li seem to think that by spreading rumors of the court's unwillingness to return to Pekin, unless this or that thing is done, they can influence the deliberations of the ministers of the powers. A Huge Long Island Industry Which Prospers by War.

Few people know that more than half the banjo and drum heads sold in the United States are made on Long Island. Near the railroad station at Cold Spring is a little red building surrounded by frames, in which skins are stretched for drying, while near by is an artificial pond, with wooden sides and bottom, filled with a chemical mixture. It is an unpretentious establishment, but in our two wars and in the peace between it has fathered a great deal of noise. The business was established in 1860, and success was almost immediate. Competition was strong after the rush of war orders was over, but the business has advanced in importance until now there are but three factories in this country whose opposition can be felt. Two of these are in Brooklyn and the other at High View, N. Y.

New York markets furnish the salted raw skins from which the drumheads are made. The hair is removed from the skins by a chemical bath in the artificial pond, and the skins are then stretched on the racks and dried. A thorough scraping removes any particles of fat or flesh that may have adhered to the dried skin, which is then the thickness of parchment. The skins are thoroughly bleached in the drying process and are then ready for cutting into heads. During the Spanish-American war the factory was fairly swamped with orders for drumheads, 500 dozen heads often being ordered at one time. The principal demand was for the "tenor" drum, on which a loud accompaniment to the fife or bass instrument can be produced.

Kangaroo skins make the costliest drumheads. When dressed, they are showy, but beyond their appearance and name they are of no greater value than heads made from calfskin. Sheepskin is used for cheap toy drums.—New York Post.

QUAINT COLONIAL NAMES.

How the Offspring of Our First Colonists Were Christened.

It is an interesting study to trace the underlying reason for many of the curious names which are given to the offspring of the first colonists. Parents searched for names of deep significance—for names appropriate to conditions, for those of profound influence presumably on the child's life.

The Rev. Richard Buck, one of the early parsons in Virginia, in days of deep depression, named his first child Mara. This text indicates the reason for his choice: "Call me Mara, for the Almighty has dealt very bitterly with me. I went out full, and the Lord has brought me home empty." His second child was christened Gershom—for Moses' wife "bare him a son and called his name Gershom, for he said I have been in a strange land."

Many names have a pathos and sadness which can be felt down through the centuries. Dame Dinely, widow of a doctor, or barber surgeon, who had died in the snow while striving to visit a distant patient, named her poor babe Fathergone.

The children of Roger Clapp were named Experience, Waitstill, Preserved, Hopestill, Wait, Thanks, Decide, Unite and Supply. Madam Austin, an early settler of old Narragansett, had 15 children. Their names were Parvis, Picus, Piersus, Prisemus, Polybius, Lois, Lettice, Avis, Anstice, Eunice, Mary, John, Elizabeth, Ruth, Freelove. All lived to be threescore and ten, one to be 102 years old. Edward Bendall's children were named Truegrace, Reform, Hoped For, More Mercy and Restore. Richard Gridley's offspring were Return, Believe and Tremble.—"Child Life In Colonial Days."

French Bakers.

Bakers in France are subject to restrictions and regulations undreamed of in England. In the fortified towns along the frontier they are bound by law to have a certain stock of flour always on hand in case of emergencies. The bakery not only has to be kept clean, but the baker has to deposit with the local authorities a certain sum of money as a surety for the proper conduct of his business.

The law also looks after his weights and measures, which circumstance places him in the same position as the British baker, but in addition the law regulates the price at which bread can be sold.

Napoleon III ordered on one occasion that a loaf about equal to our quartern should be sold for not more than sixpence, and this at a time when we were paying eightpence and ninepence.—London Tit-Bits.

Of His Abundance.

"Your neighbor has just given me an old coat," said the tramp. "Can you give something?"

"Yes," replied the clergyman. "I will go through the collection box and find some buttons to match the coat."—Philadelphia Record.

From Manila to Australia is "like going down a river, for one is out of sight of land only two days." The voyage lasts 21 days, but the course is through the south sea islands, which accounts for its resemblance to river navigation.

AN IMPORTANT SURVEY.

To Be Made By the Government Along the Ohio River.

As soon as the weather will permit, which will be very shortly, the United States government will undertake a work that will prove of very great value to this section.

It will comprise a geographical, topographical and geological survey of contiguous territory, on both sides of the river, and the results will be embodied in two maps, which will embrace in extent a quarter of a square degree, with Wheeling as the center, and will thus extend both into Pennsylvania and Ohio. Roughly stated, the territory covered will extend along the river, from a point about five miles south of Moundsville to some miles north of Steubenville, and from a few miles east of the Pennsylvania line to a point about five miles west of St. Clairsville.

The geography of this territory will be adequately and accurately set down, and in addition there will be topographical features illustrated by contour lines, showing the elevations, and also the geological formation. This will result in an accumulation of data in compact form never before approached in this vicinity, and will be of the utmost value to many people.

A Sentimental Farmer.

"These sheep pictures of Mauve's are beautiful," said Mr. L., the art instructor of the summer art school, to his class as he turned over a lot of reproductions from the great artist's paintings. "They are so gentle, so tender, so suggestive of pastoral peace and quietude!"

"Oh, I do love sheep!" exclaimed one of the girls. "They are so dear! Don't you think so, Mr. L.?"

Mr. L. looked thoughtful for a moment; then he said:

"My father, who was a farmer, kept sheep for 20 years. He was an old man when he decided to give up the practice—an old man, but as full of sentiment and feeling as he had ever been. I shall never forget the day when the purchaser of the flock came to take them away. My father stood in the barnyard and watched till the last sheep had passed through the great gate into the road, waited till the last faint bleating of the flock had died away in the distance; then he turned to me with a face full of emotion." There were tears in the eyes of the "class," and their girlish hearts were touched by the pathetic word picture. Somebody said "Ah!" in a long drawn fashion. "He turned to me, my poor old father," the artist continued, "and said in a low, earnest voice, 'William, I'd go five miles any day to kick a sheep!'"—Leslie's Weekly.

His Goal the Letter "V."

When the late Horace Maynard, LL. D., entered Amherst college, he exposed himself to ridicule and jibing questions of his fellow students by placing over the door of his room a large square of white cardboard on which was inscribed in bold outlines the single letter V. Disregarding comment and question, the young man applied himself to his work, ever keeping in mind the height to which he wished to climb, the first step toward which was signified by the mysterious V.

Four years later, after receiving the compliments of professors and students on the way he had acquitted himself as valedictorian of his class, young Maynard called the attention of his fellow graduates to the letter over his door. Then a light broke in upon them, and they cried out:

"Is it possible that you had the valedictory in mind when you put that V over your door?"

"Assuredly I had," was the emphatic reply.

On he climbed, from height to height, becoming successively professor of mathematics in the University of Tennessee, lawyer, member of congress, attorney general of Tennessee, United States minister to Constantinople and finally postmaster general.—Success.

A MAYOR'S MIRACLE.

He Made the Blind See, the Deaf Hear and the Lame Walk.

From the many anecdotes of Bamp fylde Moore Carew's rogueries in Arthur Montefiore Brice's essay on that "Amazing Vagabond" we quote one in which Carew and his gypsy crew who had rigged themselves up as cripples and gathered at Bridgewater fair to plunder the junketers came off second best.

When the mayor of Bridgewater heard that this motley group of cripples had arrived, he announced to some of his friends that he was possessed of a power they perhaps little suspected—that, in fact, he could make the blind see, the deaf hear and the lame walk. Bets were freely made that he could do nothing of the kind, and thereupon the mayor had the gypsies arrested and immediately brought before him and, after hearing their harrowing tales, ordered them to be confined for the night in the lockup.

About 10 o'clock at night, however, the municipal surgeon entered with a lantern and announced that he would examine them all in the morning in order to report to the mayor whether or not they really suffered from deformity of one kind or another, and he went on to say that those who were found to be impostors would be treated by the mayor with severity so extreme that, moved to pity, he would allow any such misguided wretch to escape there and then from the lockup on condition that he immediately left the town.

At this intelligence a great commotion arose, and in less time than it takes to write it the whole crowd surged out of the lockup, flinging away their crutches and wooden legs, patches and bandages, and made off down the town at topmost speed, the blind leading the way with unerring steps, the dumb crying aloud their fears, the deaf replying to them, and the lame sprinting along at a rattling pace. Now, just opposite the lockup, on the farther side of the street, stood the witty mayor and his friends, convulsed with laughter at the success of his scheme.—Argonaut.

CATCHING CICADAS.

How Certain Malays Obtain a Curious Delicacy.

Certain natives of the Malay peninsula catch cicadas and eat them and that as a considerable luxury. To eat a cicada seems distinctly curious, says the London Daily Mail, when we reflect that this insect is in reality a glorified member of that insect group which contains as its most prominent representative the diminutive and swarthy creature which shall be nameless here for evermore.

The way in which the Siamese proceeds was related to the Zoological society the other day by a naturalist who has spent some time in the Malay peninsula observing men as well as insects. At night, when these insects fly, the native sallies forth armed with a torch and but little raiment. The torch is deposited in a convenient place, and the swarm of natives proceed to clap their hands in a perfectly regular fashion so as to produce a considerable sound.

It is the combination of light and sound that allures the cicada from its haunts to its destruction. The insects come also in swarms and settle upon the bodies of the applauding natives, whence they are easily detached, preserved, cooked and eaten.

The Greek sage remarked that happy are the cicadas in that they have voiceless wives. It is apparently the lady cicadas who are attracted by what they fondly believe to be the love cry of the male and are thus lured to their fate by that most dangerous of passions.

Victoria and Dickens.

Literary celebrities, as a rule, were not those who attained to any high degree of personal favor at the hands of Queen Victoria, but she paid Charles Dickens a delicate compliment. Dickens, who, by the way, in his youthful days was devoured by a grand passion for the youthful queen, was invited when at the climax of his fame to dine at Windsor castle. He was after dinner presented by the queen with a copy of her book "Tour In the Highlands," and on the fly leaf was inscribed in her own hand this sentence: "From the humblest to the most distinguished author in England." The queen afterward showed many favors to Lord Tennyson, but even in making him a peer of the realm she did not bestow as great a compliment.

Breaking Up the Mess.

Lasting friendships are formed in the officers' mess abroad ship in our navy, but no effort is made to keep track of a mate when he is transferred. This strikes the landsman as a queer freak of nature, but the sailors accept it as a matter of course never to be questioned. Men get into pretty close communion with each other when they breakfast, dine and sup together for three years. As a rule, they learn each other's history to the minutest detail, unless a man chooses to be disagreeable and distant. Close attachments grow up, yet when the inexorable order arrives from Washington, sending the mess to the four winds of heaven, breaking up, as it were, the family, a warm hand shake ends it all. Each officer goes into a new mess, and the old is forgotten.

It was my good fortune to be introduced to as fine a mess as ever broke bread together on a man-of-war. The devotion of the officers to one another was an inspiration. Finally the separation came. One went to some navy yard, another to the Philippines, another to China, another to Washington, etc. They were scattered all over the world. One day, meeting the lieutenant commander, who had gone up for promotion, I inquired when he had heard from Lieutenant So-and-so. "Why, not in several months," he replied. "In fact, not since he was ordered to his new station. You know we fellows don't follow each other's movements after a mess is broken up. We form new associations, new friends, and the old drop out of sight. We never think of writing to each other. It is more than likely we shall never see each other again as long as we live, and we haven't the time or inclination to worry over each other's fate."—New York Press.

Work In the Caisson.

It is the strain within the bowels of the working chamber, unnoticed generally while there; the change on coming into the outer air that the sand hog (the workman) dreads. Under an air pressure the blood is forced away from the extremities. It is driven from the exterior into the central organs, especially toward the brain and the spinal cord.

The man, exhausted by toil under these conditions, climbs a long ladder. He is in the airlock again, with the upper door alone closed. The lock tender jerks up the bottom door. With a twist of the valve he hustles the compressed air out. The ordinary atmosphere rushes in. The upper door is thrown up, and God's sun and air come to the prisoner. The reaction is too severe. The blood, released by the sudden vanishing of 30, 40, 50 pounds of air pressure on each square inch of the body, refuses to act normally. Heart and lungs weaken, vitality ebbs. A sand hog is never sure that the next trip may not be his last.

The practical limit below ground is 50 pounds of air pressure. The men that can work in that atmosphere are masters of their trade. Yet now and then a man is met with who has the strength to go farther.—Cromwell Childe in Leslie's Monthly.

Snuff Spoons.

All the world is familiar with snuffboxes, but snuff spoons are pretty little refinements of which this generation has hardly heard. Very probably they came into use about two years after Sir George Rooke's expedition to Vigo bay in 1702, when he captured half a ton of tobacco and snuff from the Spanish galleons, and snuff thus became a common article in England.

One of the characters in a comedy published at Oxford in 1704, entitled "An Act at Oxford," by Thomas Baker, says, "But I carry sweet snuff for the ladies," to which Arabella replies: "A spoon too. That's very gallant, for to see some people run their fat fingers into a box is as nauseous as eating without a fork."

In the forties and fifties snuff spoons were still in use on the Scottish border. They were of bone and of a size to go into the snuffbox. People fed their noses, it was said, as naturally as they carried soup to their mouths. As late as 1877 a farmer at Norham-on-Tweed was seen using one.—Gentleman's Magazine.

A MAYOR'S MIRACLE.

He Made the Blind See, the Deaf Hear and the Lame Walk.

From the many anecdotes of Bamp fylde Moore Carew's rogueries in Arthur Montefiore Brice's essay on that "Amazing Vagabond" we quote one in which Carew and his gypsy crew who had rigged themselves up as cripples and gathered at Bridgewater fair to plunder the junketers came off second best.

When the mayor of Bridgewater heard that this motley group of cripples had arrived, he announced to some of his friends that he was possessed of a power they perhaps little suspected—that, in fact, he could make the blind see, the deaf hear and the lame walk. Bets were freely made that he could do nothing of the kind, and thereupon the mayor had the gypsies arrested and immediately brought before him and, after hearing their harrowing tales, ordered them to be confined for the night in the lockup.

About 10 o'clock at night, however, the municipal surgeon entered with a lantern and announced that he would examine them all in the morning in order to report to the mayor whether or not they really suffered from deformity of one kind or another, and he went on to say that those who were found to be impostors would be treated by the mayor with severity so extreme that, moved to pity, he would allow any such misguided wretch to escape there and then from the lockup on condition that he immediately left the town.

At this intelligence a great commotion arose, and in less time than it takes to write it the whole crowd surged out of the lockup, flinging away their crutches and wooden legs, patches and bandages, and made off down the town at topmost speed, the blind leading the way with unerring steps, the dumb crying aloud their fears, the deaf replying to them, and the lame sprinting along at a rattling pace. Now, just opposite the lockup, on the farther side of the street, stood the witty mayor and his friends, convulsed with laughter at the success of his scheme.—Argonaut.

CATCHING CICADAS.

How Certain Malays Obtain a Curious Delicacy.

Certain natives of the Malay peninsula catch cicadas and eat them and that as a considerable luxury. To eat a cicada seems distinctly curious, says the London Daily Mail, when we reflect that this insect is in reality a glorified member of that insect group which contains as its most prominent representative the diminutive and swarthy creature which shall be nameless here for evermore.

The way in which the Siamese proceeds was related to the Zoological society the other day by a naturalist who has spent some time in the Malay peninsula observing men as well as insects. At night, when these insects fly, the native sallies forth armed with a torch and but little raiment. The torch is deposited in a convenient place, and the swarm of natives proceed to clap their hands in a perfectly regular fashion so as to produce a considerable sound.

It is the combination of light and sound that allures the cicada from its haunts to its destruction. The insects come also in swarms and settle upon the bodies of the applauding natives, whence they are easily detached, preserved, cooked and eaten.

The Greek sage remarked that happy are the cicadas in that they have voiceless wives. It is apparently the lady cicadas who are attracted by what they fondly believe to be the love cry of the male and are thus lured to their fate by that most dangerous of passions.

Victoria and Dickens.

Literary celebrities, as a rule, were not those who attained to any high degree of personal favor at the hands of Queen Victoria, but she paid Charles Dickens a delicate compliment. Dickens, who, by the way, in his youthful days was devoured by a grand passion for the youthful queen, was invited when at the climax of his fame to dine at Windsor castle. He was after dinner presented by the queen with a copy of her book "Tour In the Highlands," and on the fly leaf was inscribed in her own hand this sentence: "From the humblest to the most distinguished author in England." The queen afterward showed many favors to Lord Tennyson, but even in making him a peer of the realm she did not bestow as great a compliment.

Breaking Up the Mess.

Lasting friendships are formed in the officers' mess abroad ship in our navy, but no effort is made to keep track of a mate when he is transferred. This strikes the landsman as a queer freak of nature, but the sailors accept it as a matter of course never to be questioned. Men get into pretty close communion with each other when they breakfast, dine and sup together for three years. As a rule, they learn each other's history to the minutest detail, unless a man chooses to be disagreeable and distant. Close attachments grow up, yet when the inexorable order arrives from Washington, sending the mess to the four winds of heaven, breaking up, as it were, the family, a warm hand shake ends it all. Each officer goes into a new mess, and the old is forgotten.

It was my good fortune to be introduced to as fine a mess as ever broke bread together on a man-of-war. The devotion of the officers to one another was an inspiration. Finally the separation came. One went to some navy yard, another to the Philippines, another to China, another to Washington, etc. They were scattered all over the world. One day, meeting the lieutenant commander, who had gone up for promotion, I inquired when he had heard from Lieutenant So-and-so. "Why, not in several months," he replied. "In fact, not since he was ordered to his new station. You know we fellows don't follow each other's movements after a mess is broken up. We form new associations, new friends, and the old drop out of sight. We never think of writing to each other. It is more than likely we shall never see each other again as long as we live, and we haven't the time or inclination to worry over each other's fate."—New York Press.

Work In the Caisson.

It is the strain within the bowels of the working chamber, unnoticed generally while there; the change on coming into the outer air that the sand hog (the workman) dreads. Under an air pressure the blood is forced away from the extremities. It is driven from the exterior into the central organs, especially toward the brain and the spinal cord.

The man, exhausted by toil under these conditions, climbs a long ladder. He is in the airlock again, with the upper door alone closed. The lock tender jerks up the bottom door. With a twist of the valve he hustles the compressed air out. The ordinary atmosphere rushes in. The upper door is thrown up, and God's sun and air come to the prisoner. The reaction is too severe. The blood, released by the sudden vanishing of 30, 40, 50 pounds of air pressure on each square inch of the body, refuses to act normally. Heart and lungs weaken, vitality ebbs. A sand hog is never sure that the next trip may not be his last.

The practical limit below ground is 50 pounds of air pressure. The men that can work in that atmosphere are masters of their trade. Yet now and then a man is met with who has the strength to go farther.—Cromwell Childe in Leslie's Monthly.

Snuff Spoons.

All the world is familiar with snuffboxes, but snuff spoons are pretty little refinements of which this generation has hardly heard. Very probably they came into use about two years after Sir George Rooke's expedition to Vigo bay in 1702, when he captured half a ton of tobacco and snuff from the Spanish galleons, and snuff thus became a common article in England.

One of the characters in a comedy published at Oxford in 1704, entitled "An Act at Oxford," by Thomas Baker, says, "But I carry sweet snuff for the ladies," to which Arabella replies: "A spoon too. That's very gallant, for to see some people run their foul fingers into a box is as nauseous as eating without a fork."

In the forties and fifties snuff spoons were still in use on the Scottish border. They were of bone and of a size to go into the snuffbox. People fed their noses, it was said, as naturally as they carried soup to their mouths. As late as 1877 a farmer at Norham-on-Tweed was seen using one.—Gentleman's Magazine.

Mrs. Smith Boswell returned to her home in Toronto Saturday afternoon after a visit with her daughter, Mrs. G. C. Mayhew, Fifth street.

L. F. Loree, general manager of the Pennsylvania lines, passed through the city on his special car attached to the westbound train this morning.

On account of a steam valve on the engine attached to the train due here at 8 o'clock breaking at Alliance Saturday evening, the train was one hour behind time at East Liverpool.

The carpenters have suspended work at the new residence of J. C. Thompson, Grandview. The painters and plasterers have considerable to do before the carpenters can resume.

Mrs. Will S. Taylor and two children left this morning for Atlantic City, where they will spend several months. Commodore Busch, who has been visiting the family, returned to his home in that city.

R. C. Reeves, president of the Street Railway Men's union of Pittsburg, who is here on business, on Saturday sent a message to the men of the Consolidated Traction company, requesting that suitable action be taken regarding the death of Senator C. L. Magee to whose memory he paid a feeling tribute.

A MAYOR'S MIRACLE.

He Made the Blind See, the Deaf Hear and the Lame Walk.

From the many anecdotes of Bamp fylde Moore Carew's rogueries in Arthur Montefiore Brice's essay on that "Amazing Vagabond" we quote one in which Carew and his gypsy crew who had rigged themselves up as cripples and gathered at Bridgewater fair to plunder the junketers came off second best.

When the mayor of Bridgewater heard that this motley group of cripples had arrived, he announced to some of his friends that he was possessed of a power they perhaps little suspected—that, in fact, he could make the blind see, the deaf hear and the lame walk. Bets were freely made that he could do nothing of the kind, and thereupon the mayor had the gypsies arrested and immediately brought before him and, after hearing their harrowing tales, ordered them to be confined for the night in the lockup.

About 10 o'clock at night, however, the municipal surgeon entered with a lantern and announced that he would examine them all in the morning in order to report to the mayor whether or not they really suffered from deformity of one kind or another, and he went on to say that those who were found to be impostors would be treated by the mayor with severity so extreme that, moved to pity, he would allow any such misguided wretch to escape there and then from the lockup on condition that he immediately left the town.

At this intelligence a great commotion arose, and in less time than it takes to write it the whole crowd surged out of the lockup, flinging away their crutches and wooden legs, patches and bandages, and made off down the town at topmost speed, the blind leading the way with unerring steps, the dumb crying aloud their fears, the deaf replying to them, and the lame sprinting along at a rattling pace. Now, just opposite the lockup, on the farther side of the street, stood the witty mayor and his friends, convulsed with laughter at the success of his scheme.—Argonaut.

CATCHING CICADAS.

How Certain Malays Obtain a Curious Delicacy.

Certain natives of the Malay peninsula catch cicadas and eat them and that as a considerable luxury. To eat a cicada seems distinctly curious, says the London Daily Mail, when we reflect that this insect is in reality a glorified member of that insect group which contains as its most prominent representative the diminutive and swarthy creature which shall be nameless here for evermore.

The way in which the Siamese proceeds was related to the Zoological society the other day by a naturalist who has spent some time in the Malay peninsula observing men as well as insects. At night, when these insects fly, the native sallies forth armed with a torch and but little raiment. The torch is deposited in a convenient place, and the swarm of natives proceed to clap their hands in a perfectly regular fashion so as to produce a considerable sound.

It is the combination of light and sound that allures the cicada from its haunts to its destruction. The insects come also in swarms and settle upon the bodies of the applauding natives, whence they are easily detached, preserved, cooked and eaten.

The Greek sage remarked that happy are the cicadas in that they have voiceless wives. It is apparently the lady cicadas who are attracted by what they fondly believe to be the love cry of the male and are thus lured to their fate by that most dangerous of passions.

Victoria and Dickens.

Literary celebrities, as a rule, were not those who attained to any high degree of personal favor at the hands of Queen Victoria, but she paid Charles Dickens a delicate compliment. Dickens, who, by the way, in his youthful days was devoured by a grand passion for the youthful queen, was invited when at the climax of his fame to dine at Windsor castle. He was after dinner presented by the queen with a copy of her book "Tour In the Highlands," and on the fly leaf was inscribed in her own hand this sentence: "From the humblest to the most distinguished author in England." The queen afterward showed many favors to Lord Tennyson, but even in making him a peer of the realm she did not bestow as great a compliment.

Breaking Up the Mess.

Lasting friendships are formed in the officers' mess abroad ship in our navy, but no effort is made to keep track of a mate when he is transferred. This strikes the landsman as a queer freak of nature, but the sailors accept it as a matter of course never to be questioned. Men get into pretty close communion with each other when they breakfast, dine and sup together for three years. As a rule, they learn each other's history to the minutest detail, unless a man chooses to be disagreeable and distant. Close attachments grow up, yet when the inexorable order arrives from Washington, sending the mess to the four winds of heaven, breaking up, as it were, the family, a warm hand shake ends it all. Each officer goes into a new mess, and the old is forgotten.

It was my good fortune to be introduced to as fine a mess as ever broke bread together on a man-of-war. The devotion of the officers to one another was an inspiration. Finally the separation came. One went to some navy yard, another to the Philippines, another to China, another to Washington, etc. They were scattered all over the world. One day, meeting the lieutenant commander, who had gone up for promotion, I inquired when he had heard from Lieutenant So-and-so. "Why, not in several months," he replied. "In fact, not since he was ordered to his new station. You know we fellows don't follow each other's movements after a mess is broken up. We form new associations, new friends, and the old drop out of sight. We never think of writing to each other. It is more than likely we shall never see each other again as long as we live, and we haven't the time or inclination to worry over each other's fate."—New York Press.

Work In the Caisson.

It is the strain within the bowels of the working chamber, unnoticed generally while there; the change on coming into the outer air that the sand hog (the workman) dreads. Under an air pressure the blood is forced away from the extremities. It is driven from the exterior into the central organs, especially toward the brain and the spinal cord.

The man, exhausted by toil under these conditions, climbs a long ladder. He is in the airlock again, with the upper door alone closed. The lock tender jerks up the bottom door. With a twist of the valve he hustles the compressed air out. The ordinary atmosphere rushes in. The upper door is thrown up, and God's sun and air come to the prisoner. The reaction is too severe. The blood, released by the sudden vanishing of 30, 40, 50 pounds of air pressure on each square inch of the body, refuses to act normally. Heart and lungs weaken, vitality ebbs. A sand hog is never sure that the next trip may not be his last.

The practical limit below ground is 50 pounds of air pressure. The men that can work in that atmosphere are masters of their trade. Yet now and then a man is met with who has the strength to go farther.—Cromwell Childe in Leslie's Monthly.

Snuff Spoons.

All the world is familiar with snuffboxes, but snuff spoons are pretty little refinements of which this generation has hardly heard. Very probably they came into use about two years after Sir George Rooke's expedition to Vigo bay in 1702, when he captured half a ton of tobacco and snuff from the Spanish galleons, and snuff thus became a common article in England.

One of the characters in a comedy published at Oxford in 1704, entitled "An Act at Oxford," by Thomas Baker, says, "But I carry sweet snuff for the ladies," to which Arabella replies: "A spoon too. That's very gallant, for to see some people run their fat fingers into a box is as nauseous as eating without a fork."

In the forties and fifties snuff spoons were still in use on the Scottish border. They were of bone and of a size to go into the snuffbox. People fed their noses, it was said, as naturally as they carried soup to their mouths. As late as 1877 a farmer at Norham-on-Tweed was seen using one.—Gentleman's Magazine.

EVENING NEWS REVIEW.

6TH YEAR. NO. 230. EAST LIVERPOOL, O., MONDAY, MARCH 11, 1901. TWO CENTS

MYSTERIOUSLY DISAPPEARED

Clerk Hill And Chief of Police Thompson Paid a Visit to the Basement Late This Afternoon, But the Foot Was Gone, Having Been Removed

The finding of a portion of a human limb in the basement of the Third street school building, reported in the News Review Saturday evening, continues a mystery. The remains may be evidence only of a surgical operation, or they may point to a crime; no one can speak positively as yet.

Two reporters, in company with Chief Thompson, paid a visit to the Third street school building this morning in order to make a further investigation of the sensational find.

The box in which the human foot was found has been in existence for many years, having been used at the old Fourth street building for the purpose of storing a revolving globe when the latter was not in use. In recent years it has not been used. About six years ago the box was removed to the Third street building, together with something like a peck of geological specimens. It had been placed on top of a pile of old frames and sashes and there it remained until about a year ago.

John Jones, a plumber residing just below the school house, was engaged at that time to do some gas fitting, and the box attracted his attention on account of its substantial construction. He remarked that it would make an excellent tool box, and attempted to lift it from its position on top of the pile of rubbish. The chest was too heavy to lift and James crawled up to see what it contained.

When the lid was lifted the foot was discovered lying upon the stones in the box, and at that time it was but slightly decomposed. Jones called his father, E. J. Jones, Thomas Taylor and Charles DeEdds, who were assisting in the work, and the find was inspected. Various theories were advanced as to how the thing got in the box and the janitor was informed of the discovery, but paid no attention to the matter at that time.

John Jones was seen this morning and stated that the foot was in a very good state of preservation at the time the discovery was made. Asked if he had seen it recently he stated that he had and that the flesh had almost rotted away. This being the case it is reasonable to suppose the thing had not been in the box long when found by Jones, and had evidently been put there by someone who had access to the basement.

Charles Allison had been the janitor of the building since its erection eight years ago, and when he died some two or three years ago, Jones was engaged to fill the place until a janitor could be secured. Samuel Carey was given the position shortly afterward, but did not stay long. The janitorship then fell to Harvey Davidson, who still occupies the position It is more than probable the foot which is that of a woman, and was taken from the right leg, was put in the box during Mr. Davidson's administration.

Clerk Hill, of the board of education, accompanied by Chief of Police Thompson, went to the scene this afternoon and were surprised to find the foot had been removed from the box. This certainly puts a different phase on the matter, as there seems to be little doubt that the party or parties who put it there have now taken it a[illegible]

the electric light wires on West Market street became detached and the circuit was broken, leaving the East End and the part of town below Fourth street in the city proper in utter darkness until about 9:45. Most of the inconvenience caused by the break was experienced in the East End, where the people had to wade through occasional ponds of water and over muddy crossings on their way home from church.

A telephone wire was down, and as no one knew whether or not it was an electric light wire or not, Officer Spence stood guard, preventing anyone from coming in contact with it.

Some of the people today are discussing the prospects of "wireless" electric lights.

MISMANAGEMENT OF DUNGANNON CREAMERY ALLEGED.

Five Stockholders Ask That Its Affairs Be Wound Up—Anton Waly's Will.

Lisbon, March 11.—(Special.)—D. H. King and others, representing one-fifth of the capital stock of the Dungannon Co-operative Creamery, have filed suit in court, asking that the affairs of this company be wound up and the company dissolved. It is claimed that mismanagement of the financial affairs of the company since its origin in 1899 has caused an indebtedness of $800 and that now the directors and managers have resolved to levy a pretended assessment upon each share of paid up capital stock of 24 per cent as a part of the stockholders' liability. It is also claimed that the business cannot be profitably conducted and dissolution only will be beneficial.

Judge Hole has made an order that a full account and true statement assets, etc., be filed by April 6. The capital stock is $3,600.

The appraisers in the case of Eli Stouffer against Henry Stouffer et al returned their valuation of several tracts of land in Fairfield township at $7,295. Eli, Henry N. and Jacob Stouffer, Amanda Wissler, Lydia Reihl and Martha Cope agreed to take their share under this appraisement.

The will in the estate of Anton Waly, late of East Liverpool, was admitted to probate this morning and Teresa Waly, on application, was appointed executrix with $2,000 bond. S. T. Herbert, T. V. Milligan, Jr., and J. T. Smith were appointed appraisers. The entire estate is left to the wife, with the exception of a number of $5 legacies to relatives in Germany.

THREE PERSONS FINED.

A Shanty Boat Raid Did Not Pan Out Well And Police Business Was Dull.

Police headquarters was a desolate looking spot this morning. Business had been very slow since Saturday.

Chief Thompson and his men had a carefully arranged plan to pinch a large party which has lately frequented a shanty boat at the foot of Market street. About 12 o'clock Saturday night the advance was made, but the result was something of a disappointment, as but two people were caught, Thomas Boyd and Mary Miller. They were charged with disorderly conduct, and upon pleading guilty were fined $7 60 each, which they paid.

William Ferguson, who resides near Calcutta, was in town Saturday, and as those things usually turn out, overestimated his capacity for booze. When found by Officer Wood on Sixth street in the afternoon he was very drunk and the officer provided him with a bunk in the jail to take a nap. He was fined $6 60 by Mayor Davidson, paid up and was released.

A Woman Orator Coming.

Miss Eva Shontz, national president of the Young People's Christian Temperance union, will lecture in the First United Presbyterian church next Thursday evening. Miss Shontz is one of the foremost women orators of the present day and lectured to a crowded audience in this city last fall. Admission is free and the public is invited.

SALEM STIRRED BY THE CHARGES

City Solicitor Metzgar's Public Acts Called In Question By B. S. Ambler.

Metzgar Requested His Accuser to Reduce His Statements to Writing, That the Matter Be Investigated—Trouble Over Railroad Sale.

Salem, March 11.—(Special.)—Certain facts have been brought out in connection with the closing up of the affairs in the Salem railway case which promise to involve some of the most prominent people in that city.

It will be remembered that B. S. Ambler was appointed attorney for and receiver of the road some time ago, and acting in that capacity disposed of the line. While the negotiations which led up to the sale of the property were in progress, L. P. Metzgar, as city solicitor, acted with Ambler in the matter, and here the trouble started.

A few days after the sale Ambler conceived the idea that the solicitor was over zealous in his devotion to the interests of the city, and a split occurred.

Ambler intimated that Metzgar's transactions were questionable, and that he had not acted in good faith with either the city nor the receiver, but strange to say the charges were not substantiated. Ambler claimed to be in a position to know that the solicitor had charged the city an exorbitant price for his services, pending and at the time of the sale. He had made two trips to New York, and his enemies made the statement that he had defrauded the city to the amount of several hundred dollars.

So intense did the feeling become that the matter was taken up by the council, and on Thursday night last the solicitor was summoned to appear before a session of that body for the purpose of answering a few questions and explaining some matters upon which the members were not exactly clear. Nothing was given out concerning the meeting, but it is understood Mr. Metzgar's explanations were most satisfactory.

Another star chamber session was held on Friday night, and arrangements were made to have Ambler present to tell what he knew concerning the solicitor's transactions. The members of the council will not talk, but it is not thought that anything that will compromise the solicitor was developed. Ambler, it is said, would make no specific charges, preferring to indulge in vague statements and unsatisfactory explanations, which left the council as much in the dark as before.

The friends of Metzgar are inclined to believe that there is something behind the agitation which has not yet been developed, as the parties at the head of the movement against him are known to have been bitterly opposed to his election to the position he now occupies.

The members of council were somewhat in doubt as to what course to pursue in the matter, but another meeting was held on Saturday evening. At that time it was decided to leave the whole affair in the hands of a committee who will make a thorough inquiry and report back to the body at the next regular meeting.

The proceedings so far have been suppressed and the general public is left to figure it out as best it can. However, the latest move in the matter was made Saturday, when the following was filed with City Clerk Holmes:

"Gentlemen—It having been called to my attention that certain statements have been made concerning me by one B. S. Ambler, to certain individual members of your honorable body, with reference to the Salem railroad case; and

"Whereas, Certain members of your honorable body have undertaken to investigate said statements; and

"Whereas, On Tuesday evening, March 5, I requested the president of your honorable body to procure said statements form said Ambler in writing before March 7, and said Ambler having refused to make said statements in writing; and

NEW ERIE LINE.

PROPOSED EXTENSION THROUGH COLUMBIANA COUNTY.

The Road Would Reach Pittsburg By the Shortest Route Via Lisbon, O.

Pittsburg, March 11.—It is believed now that in a quiet way a scheme has been planned to give the Erie railroad an entrance to Pittsburg, and that James J. Hill and others who have lately assumed a controlling influence in Erie affairs are at the back of the movement. The citizens of Columbiana county have reason to be interested in the project, as the Niles & New Lisbon branch would form a part of the proposed connecting link. Pittsburg connection would give the Erie the shortest route from Pittsburg to Cleveland. A company of local capitalists is said to be engineering the scheme to build a line from this city to the Erie and thence to connections with the Wheeling & Lake Erie and the Wabash and Toledo, St. Louis & Kansas City, and at this end to join a belt line connecting important manufacturing plants. The new road will be built on the easiest grades and will enter the city direct through a tunnel, so as to have what no other railroad here possesses, a central terminal near the heart of the business center of the most busy city in the world.

The two tunnels planned to penetrate the Mt. Washington hill and connect with the West End Belt line were originally planned with this object in view. The promoters of the new belt line propose to give the Baltimore & Ohio and the Pittsburg & Western a direct connection and will give them an opportunity to have a central station convenient to the business center of the city.

ENGINE RAN AWAY.

A Locomotive Dashed Backward Into the Roundhouse, Wrecking Part of the Building And Three Engines.

There was a serious and most exciting wreck at the Wellsville shops early this morning. Night Inspector James Leighton undertook to take out engine 609 to attach to train 301. For some cause the engine became unmanageable as soon as it got on the switch and began to run backward.

All efforts to control its movements were futile and the engine dashed backward at such speed that it ran into the round building, knocking down about 75 feet of the wall on both sides, and causing fully 5,000 feet of the roofing to fall. The roof came crashing down on the engines beneath, causing havoc and wreckage to three of them. A workman named Caruthers had a remarkably close call and was frightened nearly out of his wits.

The damage, as estimated by one of the officials this morning, will reach about $2,000. An extra force of 75 men were set at work cleaning away the debris, so that the damage may be repaired.

NEARING FLOOD STAGE.

THE RIVER NOW 24 FEET AND MORE WATER COMING.

Owners of Shanty Boats And Coal Floats Are Now on the Anxious Seat.

The river front was a busy place this morning. Owners of shanty boats and coal floats were out in force getting ready for the flood which is expected. The marks at the local wharf this morning registered 24 feet and rising. At Davis Island dam the river was 12 feet and raising one foot an hour early this morning.

The only Sunday boat to pass up yesterday was the Ben Hur, the Keystone State and Kanawha being delayed by the fog. They passed up today and the Virginia will be down tonight. The Boaz, Charles Clark, John W. Ailes, Volunteer and Hawk passed down yesterday with large tows and the Ailes passed up this morning flying light.

Ice is coming out of the Allegheny, and the Beaver, which is very high, is also contributing its quota.

EAST END FEARFUL.

Looking for Great Damage in the Event of a Flood.

A number of people who live between the river and Pennsylvania avenue, East End, are very uneasy over the prospects of a flood, which may tear out all the bridges and swamp the cellars, as has been the case so often in the past.. The report has been current that a large amount of tree tops, logs ,etc., have been thrown in the run bed up Lake's hollow and that, of course, as a result, when the high water comes, they will be carried down and will block up the passage under the bridges and throw the water on the streets and elsewhere.

Upon inquiry it was learned that there were no obstructions in the path of the river and that all the timber that has been cut since the last flood was at the head of the run and far enough away so that it was not likely to be carried to the runs unless a heavy cloudburst should occur.

It seems that the report started upon mere supposition and that there is no cause for alarm, although a flood at this season is not at all an unlikely occurrence.

A MEMORABLE DAY

Sixty-One Persons Joined the M. P. Church Yesterday, the Result of the Revival.

Thirty Persons Baptized at the First M. E. Services—Knowledge And Revelation Discussed at the Second Presbyterian Church.

Yesterday was a day that will not soon be forgotten in the Methodist Protestant church. The work began in the Sunday school of between 300 and 400 scholars. Under fine orchestral music and the sweet gospel singing of Prof. Evans, the revival fires were kindled early in the day and blazed up later. At the public service 53 persons were formally received into the church by the pastor, Rev. W. H, Gladden, and the large officiary of the church, followed by the hand of fellowship from the members.

At 2:30 in the afternoon another large congregation nearly filled the main audience room in a testimony and praise service. In the evening the church was filled for the third time. Prof. Evans sang "The Holy City," and he and Mrs. Evans also sang a duet with great sweetness and power. Pastor Gladden preached a powerful sermon, taking as his text Luke 23:33, his subject being "The Three Crosses"—one, the cross of impenitence, rebellion and scoffing; another is the cross of repentance, prayer and faith, and the middle one, the cross of salvation. He dwelt upon those three thoughts throughout his discourse, and at the close Prof. Evans sang "Calvary" with great impressiveness. Eight persons came forward, seven of them men and women, and bowed at the altar. Several conversions took place, and the large congregation lingered to a late hour.

Prof. Evans' sings again tonight and may sing "The Holy City" again. Rev. Alfred G. Fletcher, of Fairmont, W. Va., is announced for tonight and throughout the week. All are cordially invited. New hymn books will be introduced this evening.

KNOWLEDGE AND REVELATION.

Secret Things of Which Man Cannot Fathom the Reason.

The pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, Rev. N. M. Crowe, being away, Rev. Winfield E. Hill occupied the pulpit both morning and evening. His morning text was, "The secret things belong unto the Lord our God; but those things which are revealed belong unto us and to our children forever, that we may do all the words of this law."

These words form a part of the dying counsel of Moses to the nation of Israel. He had long been the distinguished leader by whom they had received the divine oracles. It was he who had led them through the wilderness, and he had brought them to the borders of the promised land. He was now ready to die and to leave the mthis message. He made them two very important declarations: Secret things belong to God; revealed things to man. The message was not more true then than now. There are still secret things which none but God can know, mysteries beyond our finite comprehension. There are truths which we believe, yet fail to understand.

There are some mysteries which are capable of being explained, and still others which we cannot fathom, for example the trinity, which we most surely believe, the three persons in the godhead, the union in the person of Jesus Christ of the divinity with the humanity. Then we look about and behold the sovereignty of the great God, and at the same time recognize the free agency of man. We even see in our own experiences God's providential dealings with us and say, they are too high or too deep and far reaching for our comprehension.

God understands why it is so; man only knows that it is so without understanding why. Then in the matter of God's revelation, our text tells us that it belongs quite as much to the children as to the adult. The youngest child in the Sunday school understands his own natural sinfulness, and the things which are revealed ought to be communicated to them in early life so that they may grow up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord.

CONVERTS BAPTIZED.

Thirty New Members Received Into the M. E. Congregation Yesterday.

All the services at the First M. E. church were well attended yesterday considering the inclement weather.

The morning service was devoted entirely to baptismal ceremonies, and 30 new converts received baptism. The service was most interesting and was in charge of the pastor.

At 2 o'clock the quarterly love feast was held in the lecture room of the church, and a grand meeting was reported by all who attended.

The regular quarterly conference services were conducted by Dr. O. W. Holmes at the Second M. E. church Saturday evening, followed by communion services Sunday morning. At the opening of his sermon Sunday morning Dr. Holmes stated that the condition of the church was very satisfactory, and that this church, in common with the other churches of the Steubenville district, was in much better condition than it was at the corresponding quarter last year.

SIX CONVERSIONS.

Intensely Interesting Services at the Christian Church.

The services at the Christian church yesterday were intensely interesting, being the most successful of the entire series.

The pastor preached morning and evening, and much good was accomplished through his efforts. Six conversins resulted from the day's services. At the eyening meeting the attendance was so large that it was impossible to accommodate the crowd. The singing of Evangelist Butterick made a deep impression, both morning and evening. The meetings will be continued throughout the entire week

Meetings at the U. P.

Rev. A. H. Kaylor, an evangelist of renown, residing in Allegheny, will commence a series of meetings at the First United Presbyterian church next Sabbath. It has not been decided how long the services will be continued.

Sang a Fine Solo.

Miss Bowers, who is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Will L. Taylor, Sixth street, contributed to the success of the services at the First Methodist Episcopal church yesterday by the singing of a beautiful solo.

REPUBLICAN CLUB.

East End Young Men Expect to Have a Big Working Organization.

The young men of the East End have organized a Republican club and propose to take an active part in politics in the future.

About 75 members are now enrolled and at least 25 applications have been received upon which action will be taken tomorrow evening. The intention is to make the organization a permanent one. It is thought no trouble will be experienced in securing a membership of 200.

A FERRY WANTED.

East Enders See No Other Way to Cross a Muddy Spot.

An employe of the Laughlin plant states that the ladies are getting up a petition to council for permission to run a ferry across a small lake in front of the Ormes' Machine shop.

The sidewalk here is paved, but is so much lower than the surrounding ground that whenever a heavy rain occurs the result is a pond of water here about a foot deep which covers the entire sidewalk so that the pottery employes, a large number of whom pass here daily, are compelled to either wade through this or through mud six inches deep on the street. Ormes claims that he wanted to repave it and council would not permit him to do so.

A CON. MAN.

He Visited the East End Saturday Night And Sold a Ring.

A worn out trick was worked on an easy East Ender at the station Saturday night, when a smooth looking individual who got off the train offered to sell for $2 a large initial ring which he said he had found on the train.

The East Ender offered 50 cents for the article and his offer was accepted. It is now claimed that the ring was one of the kind that is drawn with a dime prize package at the restaurants.

EAST END NOTES.

Charley Sours, who has been ill with typhoid fever for several weeks, is again able to be out.

Charles Chambers and family, who have been visiting here during the past few days, left for Pittsburg this morning.

Miss Tillie Hays, who has been confined to the house with the grip during the past week, is now able to be out.

It is announced that Dr. Holtz will deliver his celebrated lecture on "Grit, Grip and Gumption" at the Second M. E. church next Thursday evening.

A Sympathetic Memory.

In a western Massachusetts town lives a young woman who is blessed with both discrimination and tact.

The first of these admirable qualities she has displayed by her two marriages. Her first husband was a minister, a most delightful man. He died, and after a lapse of five or six years she was united to his only brother, who was a successful lawyer in New York.

On her library desk stands a picture of the first partner of her joys and sorrows, and one day a curious caller asked whom the photograph represented.

"That," said the hostess, with evident emotion, "is a picture of my husband's brother, who died eight years ago and who was very dear to us both."—Youth's Companion.

Counterfeit China.

Other things besides money are counterfeited, and purchasers of old china have to be continually on their guard or they will be paying many dollars for what is worth only a few cents.

"The market is full of imitation china," said a lower Fourth avenue dealer in antiques who was asked about the matter. "Persons who rely on marks are sure to be deceived, for marks are easily imitated, and there is not one that has escaped forgery.

"Both French and English manufacturers forge all of the most sought after marks and find sale for their products. In looking for old china I find that every mark of importance has been forged, from Dresden to Worcester and Crown Derby, not excepting old Sevres. Every day would be purchasers come here and visit other New York shops, looking for china, and have no mortal idea at all correct of what they are buying. Yet they will talk after a most learned fashion and will take offense at the very suggestion that they may be deceived.

"If you are going to judge of china by its marks or evidence of its age and use from discoloration cracks and chipping, you are more than likely to be cheated, for all of these things are easy for an expert and dishonest dealer to imitate. If you are not a judge of china, then hire an honest expert to purchase for you."—New York Herald.

An Advertising Scheme.

Several old acquaintances of the late D. H. McAlpin, the tobacco manufacturer, were discussing his business success in an up town club, and one of them told the following story as illustrating the farreaching effect of comparatively insignificant things sometimes.

"It was after Mr. McAlpin was well started in the tobacco business," he said, "that an enterprising rival began to cut into his business by advertising that he placed a dime in every tenth package of tobacco put up in his factory. One day a foreman of the packing room went to Mr. McAlpin and said:

"'I have a suggestion to make that promises to knock out this dime in every tenth package scheme of your rival. Will you hear it?'

"'Yes; go ahead.'

"'Well, then, just put a dime in every package of tobacco put up in our shop and don't advertise it. It will advertise itself quickly enough.'

"Mr. McAlpin saw that the suggestion was good, and he accepted it. It cost him a good deal of money, but its success warranted it. Within a few weeks farmers were buying McAlpin tobacco, knowing that they would find money in each package, and if they had found diamonds it would not have surprised them."—New York Sun.

All on Account of the Boots.

As a sergeant was bawling out his orders in a barracks in Dublin and watching the line of feet as the raw recruits endeavored to obey the word of command he found, to his astonishment, that one pair of feet, more noticeable on account of their extra large size, never turned.

Without taking his eyes off those feet the sergeant bawled out a second order:

"About face!"

He could see that all the feet except those he watched turned in obedience.

Rushing up to the owner, a little fellow, he seized him by the shoulder, shouting:

"Why don't you turn with the rest?"

"I did!" replied the trembling recruit.

"You did, eh? Well, I watched your feet, and they never moved."

"It's the boots they gave me, sir," said the poor fellow. "They're so large that when I turn my feet turns inside of them."—London Answers.

A MILLION A YEAR

EXPECTED TO SAVE EVERY CENT

Employers of the Pittsburg Man Believe He Will Save Them His Annual Stipend Five Times Over—A Five-Year Contract.

New York, March 11.—Instead of the modest $800,000 a year reported as his remuneration for presiding over the affairs of the United States Steel corporation, Chales M. Schwab will draw a salary of $1,000,000.

The figures were given authoritatively by one of the members of the steel combination who helped effect the settlement between the rival companies. Hardly less extraordinary than the salary, the largest paid any man in the business world today, is the unanimity of approval with which the officers and directors in the different companies in the steel combination regard it. When the matter was under discussion on Feb. 24 at the Waldorf-Astoria an objecting voice was answered by an officer of the National Tube company, in which J. Pierpont Morgan was largely interested.

"Mr. Schwab will earn every cent of it for the corporation," he said. "The amount sounds large, and is large, but the price paid for anything is but relative, and if you can buy several millions for one million you are getting them cheap. By his special knowledge of the business and his acquaintance with the enterprise Mr. Schwab will save for us at least $5,000,000 a year in the consolidation of the officers and reduction of working expenses."

The opposition was silenced, and it was agreed that the speaker had voiced the general sentiment. Mr. Schwab's contract with the corporation is for five years. The exact terms and limitations of his authority have not been made known.

EMPEROR'S WOUND WAS HEALING.

Exchanged Dispatches With Luitpold, on Latter's Eightieth Birthday.

Berlin, March 11.—Emperor William's wound is healing, the swelling of the eyelids is subsiding, and his majesty's general condition is satisfactory.

To Prince Luitpold, regent of Bavaria, who will complete his eightieth year, March 12, Emperor William has sent the following dispatch:

"It is with the most painful regret that I am compelled to be absent from you upon the day when you complete your eightieth year, but I shall feel near you in spirit, with feelings of deepest gratitude.

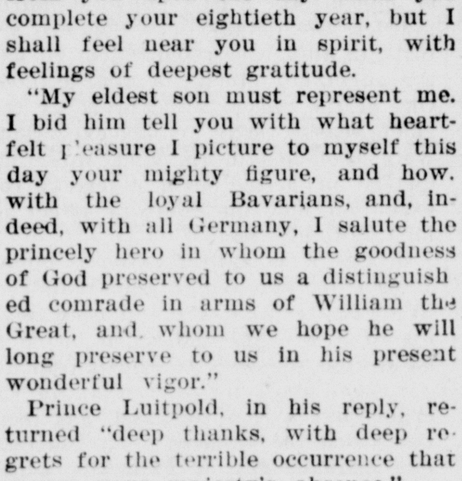

"My eldest son must represent me. I bid him tell you with what heartfelt pleasure I picture to myself this day your mighty figure, and how, with the loyal Bavarians, and, indeed, with all Germany, I salute the princely hero in whom the goodness of God preserved to us a distinguished comrade in arms of William the Great, and whom we hope he will long preserve to us in his present wonderful vigor."

Prince Luitpold, in his reply, returned "deep thanks, with deep regrets for the terrible occurrence that causes your majesty's absence."

Johnson Ill In Chicago.

Niles, Mich., March 11.—The mystery surrounding the disappearance of Cashier Charles A. Johnson, of the First National bank, has been cleared up. Mrs. Johnson last night returned from Chicago, where, she says, her husband is ill at the home of his brother-in-law. The officers of the bank are satisfied that her story is true. They say that a search of the bank's books show that not a dollar is missing.

AFTER SOME SOUTHERN INTERESTS.

May Become Part of the Big Steel Combine.

Birmingham, Ala., March 11.—T. L. Clark, of New York, general manager of the American Steel Hoop company, in Birmingham gave out an interview in which he said that the trend was in the direction of obtaining southern interests on the part of the United States Steel corporation, and that the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company and other big southern industries might become a part and parcel of the new combination.

He further stated that the election of D. H. Bacon as chairman of the executive committee of the Tennessee company, indicated that the company was controlled by the Federal Steel company, which was to be taken into the big steel merger. He said that the big steel combination necessarily would have to have a foothold in the south, hence the belief that the Tennessee company would get into the combine. President Baxter when asked on the lines replied bluntly: "I think not."

HARRISON'S CONDITION SERIOUS.

Doctor Reported Some Congestion and Danger of It Spreading.

Indianapolis, March 11.—The condition of former President Benjamin Harrison is serious. Dr. Jameson Sunday stated that the upper part of General Harrison's left lung was inflamed. There is some danger of the congestion extending to the rest of the lung and to the right lung.

Until about 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon General Harrison was resting easily, but at that time he became slightly worse, and Dr. Jameson was called. He said that he was certain nothing was to be apprehended for about the 48 hours to follow, but the condition of the patient rendered all calculations uncertain. Last evening General Harrison was suffering some pain, but was resting comparatively easy.

NOT SATISFACTORY.

Mitchell Reiterates His Opinion on the Proposal of Anthracite Operators.

Scranton, Pa., March 11.—President John Mitchell, of the United Mine Workers, spent Sunday here on his way to the Hazleton convention. He reiterated the statement made by him through the Associated Press from Indianapolis that the posting of notices by the operators to the effect that the present terms of employment would be continued for another year was not satisfactory.

"In my judgment," said Mr. Mitchell, "the proper way to adjust wages and insure uninterrupted employment is to have annual conferences between the operators and employes, as is done in the soft coal region. There is no good reason why the operators should not confer with the organization. Last fall they claimed the organization did not represent the miners. That excuse cannot be put forward now. Practically speaking, every miner in the region is now enrolled in the organization."

In reply to the charge that strikes are more frequent here since the advent of the union, Mr. Mitchell said that even if that was true it would only be natural, as the men have the feeling of strength that comes from union, yet are under no obligation to refrain from sudden strikes, such as would be the case if they were working under an explicit agreement.

NAVAL OBSERVATORY TROUBLE.

It Involves Old Question as to the Superintendency.

Washington, March 11.—It appears that the trouble at the naval observatory is not altogether of a merely personal nature. It involves the old question whether the observatory should be under the superintendence of a line officer of the navy or of a professional astronomer. The latter view has been held by the astronomical profession at large and also by such secretaries as Secretary Tracy and Secretary Long. This view is grounded not so much upon any impossibility of finding persons qualified in the line of the navy or upon any dissatisfaction with the present incumbent, as upon the fact that the frequent changes of duty to which naval officers are subject at short intervals prevent continuity of administration and also upon the general principal that the appointment of superintendent should be made from persons in or out of the naval service, without restriction to any class, and should secure the most accomplished and competent astronomer that can be found anywhere.

LOCAL PRIDE.

Our neighbors in the city of Pittsburg are paying tributes of honor and respect to the memory of their foremost citizen, who died last week. Senator Magee's life may not have been a model one in everything; but it certainly was in one respect. All Pittsburg admits that he did more than any other man to make that city the great and prosperous community it is. Such a citizen is worthy of every honor.

In his career there is a lesson for the people of every town. He always had full faith in the future of the city which was his birthplace as well as his home, and bent all his tireless energies to the work of advancing its interests. He was generous and public spirited, and what was more to the purpose, gifted with keen foresight. The plans that he laid for the growth and improvement of his city were not made with a view to present needs alone, but for all time. His leading characteristic was local pride. Although, as fortune smiled upon him, the poor boy of thirty years ago came to have millions to invest, he practically put his whole fortune into improvements in his home town. The city prospered, and he was well rewarded. He had indomitable energy and perseverance, and though his private interests were vast, public interests always occupied a larger portion of his time. No project to promote the welfare of his city lacked his encouragement; none could succeed without it.

A city's best possession is citizens of this bent and purpose. If you don't think well of your own town you are not likely to persuade any one else to do so. Find a city where local pride is at a low ebb and inevitably you will find its fortunes in the same condition.

DRINKING AND EATING.

Jacob Riis, who is a diligent student of social problems, makes the assertion that "good cooking and better feeding would do more to abate the evil of liquor drinking than all the anti-drinking and prohibition laws ever passed, and all the raids, legal or illegal, made on saloons." Mr. Riis evidently thinks that Carrie Nation and her followers would do better to attend to housekeeping duties than to spend their time and strength using tongue and hatchet fighting the demon rum. There is good sense in what he says about cooking. Long ago it was asserted that the easiest way to reach a man's heart was through his stomach. It is a truth with a variety of applications. Bad cooking promotes dyspepsia; dyspepsia causes bodily discomfort and bad temper and drives a man to drink and profanity. The cooking school that really teaches the art of cooking is a blessing to mankind. Were every housewife capable of presiding over such a school there would be less work for women crusaders.

But Mr. Riis mentions only one cause of intemperance. Scolding and slovenly wives are another equally prolific one. That man is a social animal is a trite but true saying. Many a man seeks agreeable companionship and enjoyment in a drinking resort because he cannot find them at home. The housewife who realizes that she is unable to make home more attractive to her husband than a saloon ought to be aware that she has shomehow failed in her mission. Instead of trying to reform the whole world at once, she had far better begin at home. She does not need the ballot nor the hatchet to begin the work. Reform in the kitchen and in the house will not, of course, abolish all intemperance. But it will be a stepping stone in that direction. It would cost nothing for any woman to make the experiment. The possibilities are certainly encouraging enough to warrant it.

If you see a man hurrying along the street with an expression indicating that the weight of worlds rests upon his shoulders, don't stop him. The chances are that he is a candidate, and for a few days longer will be as busy as a man with a Waterbury watch.

J. Pierpont Morgan has gone to Europe, after buying up everything in sight in this country. Probably he still has enough money left to purchase a railroad or two, if he happens to discover a rare bargain over there.

The senate has adjourned amid applause which the country will echo. Morgan is silenced temporarily, at any rate.

The backbone of winter apparently has not yet lost all its staying qualities.

IN TRAINING.

The Employes of the Klondike Have Adopted a New Plan.

The boys at the Klondike plant have been at a loss to know how to pass their spare time since Georgia got married, but have finally hit on a plan.

They have formed a boxing club and purchased the necessary accoutrements. They will now spend the noon hour in teaching each other lessons in the "manly art," and as a number of famous local sluggers work at this plant, it is expected that lively and interesting bouts will follow.

One of the boys suggests that whenever the boys lose their temper they can retire to Line island and mark off a ring and finish up in proper pugilistic style. However, it is not expected that any such thing will occur.

AMONG THE POTTERIES.

The kiln hands at the Chetwynd pottery are loafing to day on account of a shortage in ware.

President A. S. Hughes, of the Brotherhood, left at noon today for a business visit to Wheeling.

C. E. Baudisch, R. T. Hooper and others have secured a body of clay near Youngstown, O., and will erect a large plant for the purpose of producing enameled pottery and brick.

Local union No. 42, warehousemen, will hold their next meeting on March 19. The membership of this organization is steadily increasing three applications having been received since last evening.

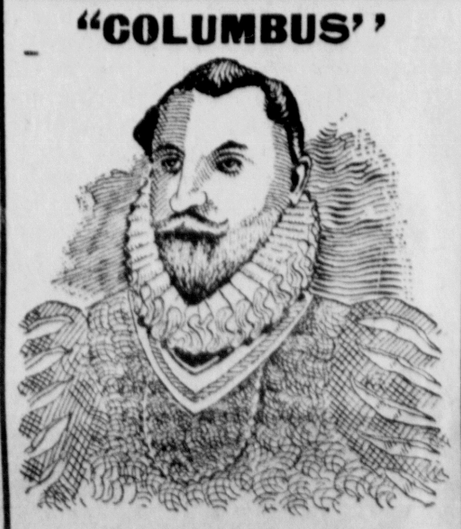

The Peoria (Ill.) pottery has been sold to W. S. George, of East Palestine, O., where he already has extensive pottery interests, as well as a large plant at Canonsburg, Pa., where he owns the Canonsburg pottery.

Night work will be commenced at the Wallace & Chetwynd pottery tonight in the slip house. There has been a shortage of clay at this plant for several weeks, and the slipmakers will continue the night turn until a sufficient supply is made.

Postponed Until Tuesday.

The regular election of officers for the Young Woman's Missionary society of the FirstPresbyterian church was to have been held on Saturday afternoon. Owing to the attendance being small the meeting was postponed until Tuesday evening, at which time the election will be held.

BENDHEIM'S

Peculiarities of Crime.

One of the strangest peculiarities of human nature is its inclination to imitate the misdeeds of others. Crime is epidemical. A particularly dreadful murder, the details of which are set forth in all the newspapers, often has the effect of inducing similar crimes. One of the reasons, and probably the chief reason, why public executions were abolished in England, was that instead of acting as a deterrent the execution had the contrary effect of inciting to murder.

In 1885 a woman of Geneva, named Lombardi, killed her four children. She admitted that she had been reading of a woman who killed her husband, and the very circumstantial account had made her wish to imitate the crime, but as her husband was dead she killed the children. This is only one instance out of hundreds which have come to our notice.

The infectious nature of self murder receives a striking testimony in the following incident: Dr. Oppenheim of Hamburg had to examine the body of a man who had cut his throat and had died after some days of suffering. The medico told his assistant that death would have been immediate if the man had made the cut in a way which he illustrated, and he was startled two days later to learn that his assistant had attempted to commit suicide by lacerating himself in that very manner. The man admitted that he had never thought of suicide until the day of the examination and the doctor's remark.—London Globe.

Some Nice Royal Jobs.

"One of the most desirable posts at Windsor castle," says a correspondent of the Chicago Record, "is that of 'the king's limner,' who in ancient times decorated books and manuscripts with initial letters and who now prepares the parchment commissions when his majesty is pleased to confer knighthood or some other honor upon one of his subjects. The man who now fills the post has extraordinary skill with the pen and brush, and his diplomas and certificates were greatly admired for their exquisite taste and skillful execution. He receives a salary of $2,500 a year. The clockmaker at Windsor castle receives the same compensation, and it is his business to keep all the timepieces in repair. The historiographer, who is supposed to keep a record of events, holds a hereditary office, with a salary of $2,500 a year. The master of music receives $1,500 and arranges concerts for his majesty's diversion. The surveyor of pictures is paid $1,500, the librarian receives $2,500, the examiner of plays $1,600, the keeper of the swans is paid $300, and the bargemaster, who looks after the boats used by the royal family at Windsor, has a similar compensation."

Something Which He Learned.

A soft answer has not only the effect of turning away wrath. It may serve to avenge an injury. Years ago the Rev. J. H. Jones was making a visit in Boston and attended a biweekly conference at Divinity hall. Just at that time he was out of sorts with the east, and his address reflected an acrid mood. Especially did he insist that

"They didn't know everything down in Judee or even in Cambridge."

When he sat down, there was a momentary hush, and then the late Dean Everett slowly rose. He began in his usual soft and hesitating tone, "There are doubtless a great many things which Mr. Jones knows and we do not know, but there are also a few things which we know and he does not."

Then followed a pause, during which each man held his breath, for the dean was known to carry on his lips a dagger which sometimes found its unerring way to the hearts of men and things, but after due pause he continued gently:

"And chief among them is how glad we always are to see him."—Youth's Companion.

The Echo at Work.

When we had climbed to the top of the mountain, we observed an old man sitting on a rock with a pair of field-glasses in his hands. Every now and then he would look earnestly through them and then whoop continuously for a time with a vigor astonishing, considering his age. For a time we observed him from a respectful distance till finally, being naturally curious, I went up to him. "Why," I asked, "do you rubber that way and then yell so loud?"

He turned and eyed me calmly, with a dignity which could have been born of nothing but a great responsibility.

"If you talk to me," he said gravely, "you'll take my attention, and I'll lose my job. I, sir, am the echo at the Mountain House down yonder."

At this point it became necessary for him to howl again, and I retired much impressed.—Princeton Tiger.

To Test Ripper Bill.

Scranton, Pa., March 11.—To test the constitutionality of the Pittsburg "ripper" bill a writ of quo warranto was applied for at the instance of Attorney General Elkin, directed to James Moir, mayor of Scranton, and the first to be appointed a city recorder under the provisions of the "ripper" bill. The person appearing in the case for the attorney general is former State Senator M. E. McDonald, who is represented by Joseph O'Brien and J. H. Burns. This action is taken to test the constitutionality of the bill which effects Pittsburg, Allegheny and this city.

Struck by a Tornado.

Princeton, Ind., March 11.—This city was struck by a tornado. One dwelling was wrecked, several others were moved from the foundations and hundreds of outbuildings were demolished. No lives were lost. The court house and the high school building were much damaged. Hundreds of windows, many of plate glass, were blown in.

TAX QUESTION IN A NUTSHELL

Dr. R. J. Marshall Has Some Interesting Observations Upon It.

BOUND TO BE INJUSTICE

He States That the Valuations Were Improperly Made And That Taxpayers Will Bear Unequal Burdens. How the Reduction Would Work.

The tax question, as stated in the News Review of Saturday, has become an exceedingly live one with the people. In the following communication to the News Review, Dr. R. J. Marshall, president of council, makes some interesting observations:

To the Editor of the News Review:

The tax question has come up, and is being talked about in the coming primaries. Permit me to say council cannot help but levy a tax that will be an outrage on many people, it matters not who they elect. It is the same with the board of education and the county commissioners. Let me explain:

For years—eight, at least—council has never changed the levy. It was 12 mills then; it is 12 mills today. All increases have been due to the board of education, county commissioners or increased valuation on some individual property by reason of improvements. And when by reason of improvement, your assessor first, then the board of equalization, fixes the tax valuation, not council. Now, let us see. Council has no control over the county commissioners or the board of education. Therefore the city levy is all it can control. The levy is now 12 mills; valuation (old), $3,410,000, which raised $40,920; new valuation, personal and real, approximate, $5,500,000. Now, to raise the same amount of money, 7½ mills would raise about $41,250. On the surface that would seem like making a big reduction in the millage. And if all valuations were equal, that is, all property valued at its actual worth or an equal per cent of its actual worth—then there would be no injustice to anyone, but if council would be unjust, it would be unjust to all alike. Now to explain where the outrage comes in and why some will be greatly benefited and some greatly wronged.

Here is a business block, worth $35,000, valued at $4,500; 7½ mills on that would make the tax, $25.25. Here is another property, a residence worth $1,500, valued at $1,200. A tax of 7½ mills on that would make the tax $9. One man has $35,000 worth of property and pays $25.25. The other has about one twenty-third as much property and pays over one-third as much tax.

There is no way council can make it right, only by following the advice of Attorney Brooks. And every voter should see that the councilman he votes for should pledge himself to vote for no member of the equalization board, who won't first pledge himself to correct the valuations along the lines laid out by Mr. Brooks.

Yours,

R. J. MARSHALL.

East Liverpool, March 11, 1901.

THE SCREEN BILL.

Ordiance Committee in Conference Upon It.

A meeting of the ordinance committee is being held this afternoon in the office of City Clerk Hanley. In addition to the committee there were several of the local saloon men present with their attorneys.

The meeting is being held for the purpose of going over the proposed screen and wine room ordinance, which had its first reading at the last meeting of council. It is not likely that any material changes will be made.

Not Yet Settled.

The trouble between the kilnhands and the Laughlin No. 1 plant has not yet been settled. The warehouse girls have also taken the matter in hand and only about three of the girls and two of the kilnhands are now working.

The question will come up at the next meeting of No. 17, and it is thought some definite action will be taken.

SOCIAL EVENTS.

It is the intention of the News Review to publish a department of social news daily or as often as events will justify. Friends are invited to send in brief accounts of weddings, parties and other happenings of interest, also notes of guests from other cities who are visiting here. Such notices will be gladly published, the only condition being that each item for this department shall bear the name and address of the writer. Annonymous letters will receive no attention in this or any other department of the paper.

OTHO CLUB.

Members of the Popular Organization Entertained.

The Otho club was very pleasantly entertained at the home of Jesse Smith, on Pennsylvania avenue, East End, last Friday evening.

This club, which is composed of young married men, meets every week at the home of one of its members. On Friday evening crolard was the game, and it was played in the progressive style. Six numbered tables were used, and at the tap of the bell every 15 minutes the man having the highest score moved up one table. The prize, which was given to the person holding the sixth table longest, was awarded to James Elliot. The playing continued until 11:30 when the host served a most elaborate luncheon, to which these married men did service with as much zeal and enjoyment as characterized the amusements in the earlier part of the evening.

The next meeting of the club will be held at the home of Elmer Stevenson next Friday evening.

INCORPORATION WILL WIN.

FRIENDS OF PROGRESS IN CHESTER IN LINE FOR IT.

They Assert That It Cannot Be Defeated—Mud of the Past Few Days Has Made Converts.

"Those seeking an argument in favor of incorporation in Chester," said J. Howard Maxwell, this morning, "need nothing better than the condition of the streets for the past few days. Country roads could not be worse than the streets of the lower end. There is a marked change in the sentiment in the past few days. The friends of incorporation are bound to win. It is progress, and progress is impossible without incorporation. No person who has visited the upper portion of the town and traveled over the paved streets and good sidewalks and then passed on to the lower end, to find himself swamped in mud, can fail to be a convert to the town idea. The streets in the upper end are laid and paid for, and so much improvement is disposed of. Do the citizens of the lower end want no improvements? Are they content to remain forever in the mud?

"Then look at the benefits of improved order and the unmerous advantages that will follow incorporation. Chester is a town with a future, and it is a mistaken idea for any citizen to put up a bar against its advancement. No community ever became great or prospered as it should without a town government. Chester is going to have one, and to go forward and not backward."

MRS. W. J. PORTER GETS A FORTUNE IN CALIFORNIA.

Inherited From a Brother—His Remains Brought Home to Calcutta.

The remains of Samuel E. Stevens, of Pasedena, Cal., arrived at the Chester depot this morning and were taken in charge by Undertaker McQuilken. They will be taken to Calcutta for interment. The body was accompanied by Mrs. William J. Porter, a sister of Mrs. Stevens, who had traveled with the remains on the long journey across the continent. Mrs. Porter, who lives in New Cumberland, has made two trips to California within the last month. Mrs. Porter is now independently wealthy, her brother having left her his entire estate valued at $150,000, on condition that she take up her residence in California within a month. She will leave for the Pacific coast at an early date.

AT A WHITE HEAT.

All Interest Centers On the Election on the Southside Tomorrow.

The election in Chester tomorrow promises to be a lively contest. Both sides claim they will win.

One can get any sort of an estimate—it all depends on whom he talks to. Both sides are vigilant and say they will do their utmost to preserve order.

Interest is at a white heat, and it seems probable that a full vote will be polled. According to the census there should be about 150 votes.

The Antis' Position.

W. H. Riley said this morning: "My friends and I would like to ask the promoters of the incorporation scheme what the cost will be when completed. We have been in the dark as to that matter. The code of West Virginia warns the people to ascertain what their fees will be, for there is no limit as to this unless bound by the law. We would say to voters, be on your guard tomorrow when you cast your ballots, and remember that is the time to decide whether or not we shall be responsible for this injustice."

Trouble Threatened.

Considerable trouble is threatened as a result of the suits brought against J. E. Mercer for unpaid bills some time ago. Mr. Mercer's attorney claims that he will sue the constable and prosecutors for damages if Mercer's goods are sold. The case is important, for the court where the matter will be settled if suit for damages is brought, will finally decide whether a man's goods can be attached when he seems to be trying to beat his creditors by moving away.

SOUTHSIDE NOTES.

A MAN AND HIS VIOLETS.

The Story of the Vivacious Maid Who Received the Flowers.

"Yes, it was a lovely bunch of violets," sighed the girl who received them, "but I wish they had never come to me. You see, it was this way: The man who sent them is one of those awfully nice fellows who bore you to death—the kind you feel so glad to see talking to some one else, don't you know," she ended appealingly.

"Yes; I've seen the type," sympathetically replied her auditor.

"Well, on my birthday he sent that lovely bunch of violets—perfect beauties they were—with a dear little note to the effect that he had to go out of town, but would be represented by these little purple clad messengers, so like my eyes and whose fragrance always reminded him of me. I thought the note rather nice," she concluded pensively, "and put the flowers in the parlor on the center table, writing back that I had done so. Why in the world was I so prompt?" she wailed.

"It was no more than polite."

"Oh, much more! My dear, it is always idiotic to go into details like that. Well, he did not go out of town, but was 'fortunately' detained and came around after all to tell me so. And those wretched violets"—

"Surely they were all right?"

"I had loaned them to Annie to wear to the Blanks' dinner. Of course I had to tell him that the heat of the room was too great, and I had put them in the icebox. Just as he was going and I was congratulating myself on my escape in sailed that miserable girl, violets and all! If he had only gone, as he said he would, it would have been all right. Men are so unreliable!"—New York Mail and Express.

FIERCE WIND STORM

Resulted In Great Damage at Chicago and Other Western Points.

The Windy City Alone Suffered Property Damage to the Extent of $175,000—The Worst Gale on the Lakes for Many Years.

Chicago, March 11.—A wind storm struck Chicago and damaged property throughout the city to the extent of about $175,000. Many heavy plate glass windows were blown in. Telegraph and telephone companies were the worst sufferers, and it will be some time before order can be restored. Thousands of poles were blown down and Chicago was practically isolated from the west and northwest by telephone and telegraph last night and about all day Sunday.

The long-distance telephone service was crippled so badly that it was of little value. Up to a late hour last night neither Milwaukee nor Minneapolis could be reached by long-distance telephone.

The storm is believed to have been most severe in Southern Wisconsin. Along a short stretch of the Milwaukee road, in Southern Wisconsin, 500 telegraph poles are down.

Reports from many points in Indiana and Kentucky also indicate heavy damage from the storm. The Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies suffered severely by fallen poles. It was estimated that there were not fewer than 5,000 poles in the city thrown down by the fury of the wind and storm. Service almost as far west as Omaha was stopped until late last evening.

Trains entering Chicago were delayed all the way from 10 minutes to one hour. The Burlington and the Milwaukee and St. Paul companies were the worst sufferers in this respect. All the roads suffered damages to their tracks and switch yards.

At the life saving station at the mouth of the Chicago river it was considered the worst gale which has struck Chicago harbor since 1894. The water, lashed into fury, came up to the life saving station and flooded the floor for the first time in 12 years. Most of the shipping was protected in winter quarters, so that the damage done to it was slight.

Ordained as Ministers.

York, Pa., March 11.—At Red Lion Bishop W. M. Stanford, D. D., ordained to their respective ministerial offices Revs. M. T. Crouch and W. H. Brown, to whom the Central Pennsylvania conference of the United Evangelical church had voted elders' orders, and John I. Craul, John F. Pettit, Guy R. Stover, N. F. Weaver and M. A. Faus, whom conference had promoted to the office of deacons. Rev. J. D. Woodring delivered the principal address at the celebration of the anniversary of the conference missionary society.

Pennsylvania Revenues.

Harrisburg, March 11.—The net amount of the state revenues for the fiscal year ended Nov. 30, 1900, as shown by the last annual report of State Treasurer James E. Barnett, was $14,280,820.05, an increase of $2,059,352.76 in the gross receipts for 1899. Colonel Barnett estimates the state revenue for the current fiscal year at $13,519,875 and the payments at $12,684,871.50, which is exclusive of any sum which may be appropriated to complete the capitol.

To Investigate Charges Against Heistand.

NO DRINKING.

A Western Railroad Will Not Allow Its Employes to Indulge at Any Time.

Dubuque, Ia., March 11.—The superintendent of the Dubuque division of the Chicago Great Western Railroad company issued a sweeping order to employes, which in effect prohibits them from using intoxicating liquor in any form or at any time. It applies to trainmen, station agents, foremen and others who hold responsible positions with the company. It prohibits them from entering saloons or using liquor, whether on or off duty, and the penalty for any violation of this rule is immediate discharge of the offender. The order also commands all employes to pay their honest debts, and any failure to do so will cause their immediate discharge, unless a reasonable excuse can be given.

SWINDLED PROMINENT MEN.

Seth Low and Others Appeared Against Raymond.

New York, March 11.—President Seth Low, of Columbia university; General Thomas L. Ford, president of the Lincoln National bank; President Daniel C. Gilman, of Johns Hopkins university, of Baltimore, and Secretary William Beebe, of Columbia university, were in police court before Magistrate Pool, to prosecute Ross Raymand for swindling. Presidents Low and James and Secretary Beebe told How Raymond, under the name of Prof. Sandys, had played a confidence game on them by which he obtained $200 from the bank. President Gilman testified that the letter which Raymond presented to President Low was a forgery. The technical charges on which Raymond was held was the forging of the check and the Gilman letter, and he was held in $3,000 bond on each of these charges. Raymond was arrested in New Haven last week for trying to swindle President Hadley, of Yale college.

Diaz Reported Gaining Strength.

Mexico City, March 11.—The Official Gazette, published by the government, announces that President Diaz will return here within a fortnight, in order to preside over the cabinet session, which will discuss the coming message to congress, which opens next month. Reports agreed that the president is steadily gaining in strength.

Hindman, Ky., March 11.—Rufus Wooten and John Everage were killed by Benton Messeus, a Knott county physician, during a fight here. About two days previous the two men, with Blaine Combs, fired into Messeus' house as they rode by. Returning Saturday, a general fight took place, with the above result.

Cashier of Bank Was Missing.

Niles, Mich., March 11.—Cashier Charles A. Johnson, of the First National bank, which closed its doors Friday, was still missing Sunday Johnson's friends insisted that he was deranged mentally as a result of the shock of the bank's suspension and was in Chicago. However, they did not give his address in that city.

Sealed Verdict Was Returned.

Wichita, Kan., March 11.—A sealed verdict was returned in the case of the state vs Mrs. Carrie Nation, Lucy Wilhoite, Julia Evans and Lydia Muntz, charged with wrecking a saloon here on Jan. 21. The verdict was to be read, it was expected, in the district court today.

CUBAN IRE AROUSED

Radical Element Among the Islanders Doing Much Agitating Just at Present.

FIGHTING PLATT.S AMENDMENT

Placards Vigorously Worded Placed in Public Places—Action of the United States Attributed by the Radical Press to Trusts.

Havana, March 11.—Although the political demonstrations have ended, the radical element in the Cuban constitutional convention has not given up hope that the United States will recede from the position taken regarding the Platt amendment. The radical press is doing everything in its power to keep this view before the public. It attributes the action of the United States congress to the influence of the trusts, declaring that the American people "are in favor of giving Cuba an absolute independence and of rebuking the action of the administration." Articles from American powers which seem to sustain the attitude of the convention are given wide publicity.

Senor Gualberto Gomez says in La Patria:

"Let us, the champions of our country's independence and sovereignty, preserve the calm, dignified attitude we have assumed. Do not let us lose our calm judgment. Let us maintain our energetic resolution to be free, but let us avoid furnishing the slightest pretext for the unhealthy imperialism which is corrupting the blood of a generous people and inclining them to trample upon our rights.

"Let us still believe in the justice of our cause and in the honor of our country, which produced Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln."

At street corners in various public places placards have been posted, which read thus:

"To the people of the United States—Do not make any promises that you are not sure to keep and never go back on the word you have given.

(Signed) "George Washington."

This is recommended to the consideration of "all worthy compatriots of the great American."

Thus far the radical members of the convention remain firm in their determination not to accept the Platt amendment. The committee on foreign relations, it was expected, will meet today, but a final report was not expected Sunday for several days.

Warrant Sworn Out For a Girl.

St. Joseph, Mo., March 11.—The grand jury, which had been investigating the murder case of Millionaire Frank Richardson, after examining the fortieth witness, adjourned Saturday, expecting to re-convene today. Some very sensational evidence is said to have been given the body and a warrant was sworn out for the arrest of Bessie Phillips, the domestic in the employ of the Richardson home, on the night of the murder. The grand jury will continue to work on the case.

James P. Wilson Appointed.

Youngstown, O., March 11.—James P. Wilson, counsel for the Pittsburg and Lake Erie railroad, has been appointed general counsel for the Richland and Mahoning railroad, which is securing right of way through this city. This appointment is regarded as confirmation of the report that the Vanderbilts, who own the Pittsburg and Lake Erie, are the promoters of the Richland and Mahoning, as it will give them a direct outlet from Pittsburg to the southwest.

A Victory For Anti-Liquor Element.

Topeka, Kan., March 11.—After a fight of unprecedented bitterness between the temperance and anti-temperance elements here, Colonel J. W. E. Hughes and the entire "law enforcement" ticket was nominated in the Republican primaries by a majority of more than a thousand. More women voted than ever before in an election here.

Edited by Mrs. Nation.

Topeka, Kan., March 11.—The first issue of Mrs. Nation's Smasher Mail appeared and was used as campaign literature by those opposed to the nomination in the primaries of the "Law and Order" candidate for mayor. Mrs. Nation is yet in the county jail, and edited The Smasher from there.

Miles to Go to Cuba.

Washington, March 11.—Lieutenant General Miles, accompanied by his staff, it was expected, will leave here next Thursday for a trip to Cuba, where he will make an inspection of the principal military posts.

KILLED IN A TORNADO.

Eight Persons Met Death And Others Were Hurt in the Texas Storm.

Dallas, Texas, March 10.—Further reports of the tornado at Wills Point made no additions to the death list. As stated in previous dispatches, four persons were killed outright. The property loss at Wills Point is $50,000. East of Wills Point the country is dotted with evidences of the storm's fury and by the little mounds of wreckage its course can be followed to the Arkansas line. At New Boston and at Texarkana it seems to have left the state. At both these places houses were considerably damaged. At New Boston two negroes were injured by flying debris. The recovery of one of them is doubtful. A number of small houses there were wrecked. At Texarkana some damage was done on College hill, a suburb. The westernmost trace of the storm is in Collin county, about 30 miles north of Dallas. Here the wind was very strong, but no serious damage is reported.

The dead at Wills Point are:

Maggie Clouse, infant of Rev. J. H. Clouse.

Leon, 3-year-old son of J. H. Williams.

Child of John White.

Charles Powers, painter, drowned.

St. Louis, March 10.—A special to The Globe Democrat from Dallas, Texas, last night, said in part:

Up to tonight, eight deaths are reported from the Will's Point tornado.

Beulah Johnson died last night from fright. She was sick at the home of her father, O. L. Johnson, when the storm struck the town. S. W. Garrett, Benjamin Walters and two of J. W. Williams' children are reported to be dying.

Six Killed In Arkansas.

Forest City, Ark., March 11.—Three persons were killed and many injured in this vicinity by a tornado.

Paragould, Ark., March 11.—The storm killed three persons in this (Greene) county and wrought much property damage.

LI HUNG CHANG ILL.

He and Ching Apparently Trying to Fool the Powers.

Pekin, March 11.—Li Hung Chang is again seriously ill, and his physician said his life hung by a thread.

Prince Ching and Earl Li seem to think that by spreading rumors of the court's unwillingness to return to Pekin, unless this or that thing is done, they can influence the deliberations of the ministers of the powers. As a matter of fact, according to reliable reports from Sian Fu, the imperial personages are extremely uncomfortable at Sian Fu, where they live in the house of the governor, which is only a small structure.

French missionaries who have just returned here from Sian Fu believe the empress dowager would bring the court back to Pekin on the first offer of the allies having as a basis the removal of the troops except the legation guards.

FEARFUL RAVAGES OF PLAGUE.

22 Deaths and 102 Cases Reported at Cape Town.

Cape Town, March 11.—The official reports regarding the progress of the bubonic plague in Cape Town since the outbreak showed a total of 22 deaths and 102 cases.

The Malays gathered to oppose the removal of a Malay who had been attacked by the disease and of several persons who had come in contact with the victim. The police were overpowered and the persons who had come into contact with the Malay made their escape. In the event of a repetition of this experience it will be necessary to employ an armed force, so that trouble is anticipated.

BUILDING DAMAGED BY FIRE.

A Railrord Structure Suffered to Extent of About $250,000.

New York, March 11.—The building owned and occupied by the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company, for the general offices of several departments, at Willis avenue and One Hundred and Thirty-second street, was heavily damaged by fire. It is estimated that the damage to the building and the valuable records stored there will probably aggregate $250,000. Thirty clerks employed in the building at the time of the fire escaped with difficulty.

The building was 300 by 40 feet in dimensions and three stories high.

Strengthened the Prohibitory Law.

Topeka, Kan., March 11.—The Kansas legislature adjourned. The principal law passed was one known as the Hurrell bill, which strengthened the prohibitory law of the state.

Offered a Library by Carnegie.

San Jose, Cal., March 11.—Andrew Carnegie offered to give $50,000 for a library for San Jose, the city to appropriate not less than $5,000 a year for maintenance and furnish the site.

THE DRUMHEAD BUSINESS.

A Huge Long Island Industry Which Prospers by War.

Few people know that more than half the banjo and drum heads sold in the United States are made on Long Island. Near the railroad station at Cold Spring is a little red building surrounded by frames, in which skins are stretched for drying, while near by is an artificial pond, with wooden sides and bottom, filled with a chemical mixture. It is an unpretentious establishment, but in our two wars and in the peace between it has fathered a great deal of noise. The business was established in 1860, and success was almost immediate. Competition was strong after the rush of war orders was over, but the business has advanced in importance until now there are but three factories in this country whose opposition can be felt. Two of these are in Brooklyn and the other at High View, N. Y.

New York markets furnish the salted raw skins from which the drumheads are made. The hair is removed from the skins by a chemical bath in the artificial pond, and the skins are then stretched on the racks and dried. A thorough scraping removes any particles of fat or flesh that may have adhered to the dried skin, which is then the thickness of parchment. The skins are thoroughly bleached in the drying process and are then ready for cutting into heads. During the Spanish-American war the factory was fairly swamped with orders for drumheads, 500 dozen heads often being ordered at one time. The principal demand was for the "tenor" drum, on which a loud accompaniment to the fife or bass instrument can be produced.

Kangaroo skins make the costliest drumheads. When dressed, they are showy, but beyond their appearance and name they are of no greater value than heads made from calfskin. Sheepskin is used for cheap toy drums.—New York Post.

QUAINT COLONIAL NAMES.

How the Offspring of Our First Colonists Were Christened.

It is an interesting study to trace the underlying reason for many of the curious names which are given to the offspring of the first colonists. Parents searched for names of deep significance—for names appropriate to conditions, for those of profound influence presumably on the child's life.

The Rev. Richard Buck, one of the early parsons in Virginia, in days of deep depression, named his first child Mara. This text indicates the reason for his choice: "Call me Mara, for the Almighty has dealt very bitterly with me. I went out full, and the Lord has brought me home empty." His second child was christened Gershom—for Moses' wife "bare him a son and called his name Gershom, for he said I have been in a strange land."

Many names have a pathos and sadness which can be felt down through the centuries. Dame Dinely, widow of a doctor, or barber surgeon, who had died in the snow while striving to visit a distant patient, named her poor babe Fathergone.

The children of Roger Clapp were named Experience, Waitstill, Preserved, Hopestill, Wait, Thanks, Decide, Unite and Supply. Madam Austin, an early settler of old Narragansett, had 15 children. Their names were Parvis, Picus, Piersus, Prisemus, Polybius, Lois, Lettice, Avis, Anstice, Eunice, Mary, John, Elizabeth, Ruth, Freelove. All lived to be threescore and ten, one to be 102 years old. Edward Bendall's children were named Truegrace, Reform, Hoped For, More Mercy and Restore. Richard Gridley's offspring were Return, Believe and Tremble.—"Child Life In Colonial Days."

French Bakers.

Bakers in France are subject to restrictions and regulations undreamed of in England. In the fortified towns along the frontier they are bound by law to have a certain stock of flour always on hand in case of emergencies. The bakery not only has to be kept clean, but the baker has to deposit with the local authorities a certain sum of money as a surety for the proper conduct of his business.

The law also looks after his weights and measures, which circumstance places him in the same position as the British baker, but in addition the law regulates the price at which bread can be sold.

Napoleon III ordered on one occasion that a loaf about equal to our quartern should be sold for not more than sixpence, and this at a time when we were paying eightpence and ninepence.—London Tit-Bits.

Of His Abundance.

"Your neighbor has just given me an old coat," said the tramp. "Can you give something?"

"Yes," replied the clergyman. "I will go through the collection box and find some buttons to match the coat."—Philadelphia Record.

From Manila to Australia is "like going down a river, for one is out of sight of land only two days." The voyage lasts 21 days, but the course is through the south sea islands, which accounts for its resemblance to river navigation.

AN IMPORTANT SURVEY.

To Be Made By the Government Along the Ohio River.

As soon as the weather will permit, which will be very shortly, the United States government will undertake a work that will prove of very great value to this section.

It will comprise a geographical, topographical and geological survey of contiguous territory, on both sides of the river, and the results will be embodied in two maps, which will embrace in extent a quarter of a square degree, with Wheeling as the center, and will thus extend both into Pennsylvania and Ohio. Roughly stated, the territory covered will extend along the river, from a point about five miles south of Moundsville to some miles north of Steubenville, and from a few miles east of the Pennsylvania line to a point about five miles west of St. Clairsville.

The geography of this territory will be adequately and accurately set down, and in addition there will be topographical features illustrated by contour lines, showing the elevations, and also the geological formation. This will result in an accumulation of data in compact form never before approached in this vicinity, and will be of the utmost value to many people.

A Sentimental Farmer.

"These sheep pictures of Mauve's are beautiful," said Mr. L., the art instructor of the summer art school, to his class as he turned over a lot of reproductions from the great artist's paintings. "They are so gentle, so tender, so suggestive of pastoral peace and quietude!"

"Oh, I do love sheep!" exclaimed one of the girls. "They are so dear! Don't you think so, Mr. L.?"

Mr. L. looked thoughtful for a moment; then he said:

"My father, who was a farmer, kept sheep for 20 years. He was an old man when he decided to give up the practice—an old man, but as full of sentiment and feeling as he had ever been. I shall never forget the day when the purchaser of the flock came to take them away. My father stood in the barnyard and watched till the last sheep had passed through the great gate into the road, waited till the last faint bleating of the flock had died away in the distance; then he turned to me with a face full of emotion." There were tears in the eyes of the "class," and their girlish hearts were touched by the pathetic word picture. Somebody said "Ah!" in a long drawn fashion. "He turned to me, my poor old father," the artist continued, "and said in a low, earnest voice, 'William, I'd go five miles any day to kick a sheep!'"—Leslie's Weekly.

His Goal the Letter "V."

When the late Horace Maynard, LL. D., entered Amherst college, he exposed himself to ridicule and jibing questions of his fellow students by placing over the door of his room a large square of white cardboard on which was inscribed in bold outlines the single letter V. Disregarding comment and question, the young man applied himself to his work, ever keeping in mind the height to which he wished to climb, the first step toward which was signified by the mysterious V.

Four years later, after receiving the compliments of professors and students on the way he had acquitted himself as valedictorian of his class, young Maynard called the attention of his fellow graduates to the letter over his door. Then a light broke in upon them, and they cried out:

"Is it possible that you had the valedictory in mind when you put that V over your door?"

"Assuredly I had," was the emphatic reply.

On he climbed, from height to height, becoming successively professor of mathematics in the University of Tennessee, lawyer, member of congress, attorney general of Tennessee, United States minister to Constantinople and finally postmaster general.—Success.

A MAYOR'S MIRACLE.

He Made the Blind See, the Deaf Hear and the Lame Walk.

From the many anecdotes of Bamfylde Moore Carew's rogueries in Arthur Montefiore Brice's essay on that "Amazing Vagabond" we quote one in which Carew and his gypsy crew who had rigged themselves up as cripples and gathered at Bridgewater fair to plunder the junketers came off second best.

When the mayor of Bridgewater heard that this motley group of cripples had arrived, he announced to some of his friends that he was possessed of a power they perhaps little suspected—that, in fact, he could make the blind see, the deaf hear and the lame walk. Bets were freely made that he could do nothing of the kind, and thereupon the mayor had the gypsies arrested and immediately brought before him and, after hearing their harrowing tales, ordered them to be confined for the night in the lockup.

About 10 o'clock at night, however, the municipal surgeon entered with a lantern and announced that he would examine them all in the morning in order to report to the mayor whether or not they really suffered from deformity of one kind or another, and he went on to say that those who were found to be impostors would be treated by the mayor with severity so extreme that, moved to pity, he would allow any such misguided wretch to escape there and then from the lockup on condition that he immediately left the town.

At this intelligence a great commotion arose, and in less time than it takes to write it the whole crowd surged out of the lockup, flinging away their crutches and wooden legs, patches and bandages, and made off down the town at topmost speed, the blind leading the way with unerring steps, the dumb crying aloud their fears, the deaf replying to them, and the lame sprinting along at a rattling pace. Now, just opposite the lockup, on the farther side of the street, stood the witty mayor and his friends, convulsed with laughter at the success of his scheme.—Argonaut.

CATCHING CICADAS.

How Certain Malays Obtain a Curious Delicacy.

Certain natives of the Malay peninsula catch cicadas and eat them and that as a considerable luxury. To eat a cicada seems distinctly curious, says the London Daily Mail, when we reflect that this insect is in reality a glorified member of that insect group which contains as its most prominent representative the diminutive and swarthy creature which shall be nameless here for evermore.

The way in which the Siamese proceeds was related to the Zoological society the other day by a naturalist who has spent some time in the Malay peninsula observing men as well as insects. At night, when these insects fly, the native sallies forth armed with a torch and but little raiment. The torch is deposited in a convenient place, and the swarm of natives proceed to clap their hands in a perfectly regular fashion so as to produce a considerable sound.

It is the combination of light and sound that allures the cicada from its haunts to its destruction. The insects come also in swarms and settle upon the bodies of the applauding natives, whence they are easily detached, preserved, cooked and eaten.

The Greek sage remarked that happy are the cicadas in that they have voiceless wives. It is apparently the lady cicadas who are attracted by what they fondly believe to be the love cry of the male and are thus lured to their fate by that most dangerous of passions.

Victoria and Dickens.

Literary celebrities, as a rule, were not those who attained to any high degree of personal favor at the hands of Queen Victoria, but she paid Charles Dickens a delicate compliment. Dickens, who, by the way, in his youthful days was devoured by a grand passion for the youthful queen, was invited when at the climax of his fame to dine at Windsor castle. He was after dinner presented by the queen with a copy of her book "Tour In the Highlands," and on the fly leaf was inscribed in her own hand this sentence: "From the humblest to the most distinguished author in England." The queen afterward showed many favors to Lord Tennyson, but even in making him a peer of the realm she did not bestow as great a compliment.

Breaking Up the Mess.

Lasting friendships are formed in the officers' mess abroad ship in our navy, but no effort is made to keep track of a mate when he is transferred. This strikes the landsman as a queer freak of nature, but the sailors accept it as a matter of course never to be questioned. Men get into pretty close communion with each other when they breakfast, dine and sup together for three years. As a rule, they learn each other's history to the minutest detail, unless a man chooses to be disagreeable and distant. Close attachments grow up, yet when the inexorable order arrives from Washington, sending the mess to the four winds of heaven, breaking up, as it were, the family, a warm hand shake ends it all. Each officer goes into a new mess, and the old is forgotten.

It was my good fortune to be introduced to as fine a mess as ever broke bread together on a man-of-war. The devotion of the officers to one another was an inspiration. Finally the separation came. One went to some navy yard, another to the Philippines, another to China, another to Washington, etc. They were scattered all over the world. One day, meeting the lieutenant commander, who had gone up for promotion, I inquired when he had heard from Lieutenant So-and-so. "Why, not in several months," he replied. "In fact, not since he was ordered to his new station. You know we fellows don't follow each other's movements after a mess is broken up. We form new associations, new friends, and the old drop out of sight. We never think of writing to each other. It is more than likely we shall never see each other again as long as we live, and we haven't the time or inclination to worry over each other's fate."—New York Press.

Work In the Caisson.

It is the strain within the bowels of the working chamber, unnoticed generally while there; the change on coming into the outer air that the sand hog (the workman) dreads. Under an air pressure the blood is forced away from the extremities. It is driven from the exterior into the central organs, especially toward the brain and the spinal cord.

The man, exhausted by toil under these conditions, climbs a long ladder. He is in the airlock again, with the upper door alone closed. The lock tender jerks up the bottom door. With a twist of the valve he hustles the compressed air out. The ordinary atmosphere rushes in. The upper door is thrown up, and God's sun and air come to the prisoner. The reaction is too severe. The blood, released by the sudden vanishing of 30, 40, 50 pounds of air pressure on each square inch of the body, refuses to act normally. Heart and lungs weaken, vitality ebbs. A sand hog is never sure that the next trip may not be his last.

The practical limit below ground is 50 pounds of air pressure. The men that can work in that atmosphere are masters of their trade. Yet now and then a man is met with who has the strength to go farther. —Cromwell Childe in Leslie's Monthly.

Snuff Spoons.

All the world is familiar with snuffboxes, but snuff spoons are pretty little refinements of which this generation has hardly heard. Very probably they came into use about two years after Sir George Rooke's expedition to Vigo bay in 1702, when he captured half a ton of tobacco and snuff from the Spanish galleons, and snuff thus became a common article in England.

One of the characters in a comedy published at Oxford in 1704, entitled "An Act at Oxford," by Thomas Baker, says, "But I carry sweet snuff for the ladies," to which Arabella replies: "A spoon too. That's very gallant, for to see some people run their fat fingers into a box is as nauseous as eating without a fork."

In the forties and fifties snuff spoons were still in use on the Scottish border. They were of bone and of a size to go into the snuffbox. People fed their noses, it was said, as naturally as they carried soup to their mouths. As late as 1877 a farmer at Norham-on-Tweed was seen using one.—Gentleman's Magazine.
